CHELSEA BOOTLEG SAYS HE PAID BROTHER OF MAYOR $50 A MONTH

The charge that he was raided several times while paying for protection in the liquor business, and that he was forced to buy moonshine from a police official, was made in Federal Court today by Louis Barlow, of No. 48 Essex street, Chelsea

Testifying against Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley and twenty-seven [illegible] for rum conspiracy, Barlow said he paid protection to Inspector Tom Quigley, brother of the Mayor, and bought liquor from him.

The witness said he paid $50 a month to Inspector Quigley, one of the defendants, that he purchased hootch from him three times, and contributed $1,500 altogether to Mayor Quigley's campaigns.

Barlow said that after being raided, he visited Mayor Quigley to protest, I was told he was a chronic objector.

"If you people don't want me in business in Chelsea, say so," the witness said he told the mayor. "I was caught last week, and I paid $150 to Crowley, and I don't see why they're bothering me. I'm

Second Coolidge Election
Eating Hard Alcohol
Diamonds Blazing

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1926, by the Star Company)

MR. MADDEN, of Illinois, chairman of the House appropriations committee, announces that fifty million dollars will be used to develop inland waterways this coming year. The amount was increased ten millions by President Coolidge's recommendation.

That is a start, although small. A complete plan should be mapped out and put through as fast as engineers, men and machinery can be found to do it, no matter what it costs.

A nation that could oblige its neighbors in Europe with ten thousand million dollars in a hurry to finance their job of cutting each other's throats, and stealing each other's land, should find money to develop its own nation and its own resources.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE asks the people to remember as they read speeches made in Congress that some speeches are for political effect. That is reasonable. Statesmen often talk with another election in view.

SENATOR HARRISON of Mississippi, highly indignant, denounces the President for a statement "unworthy of a President of the United States." That is less reasonable. Free speech is part of our government doctrine, although our patriot-profiteers did suppress it for a while in war time. The Senators may say what they think in the Senate and start their campaigns there. It is the right and duty of the President to say what he thinks and knows.

IT IS NATURAL and proper that the President should talk and frankly. In 1928 he will be elected President again, FOR THE SECOND TIME.

That being so the people want all possible information about his mental operations.

MR. VOLSTEAD, now legal adviser of prohibition, has a plan to wipe out all legalized production of alcohol. He demands an end of alcoholic preparations for rubbing the body, hair, etc., taking the moral ground that alcohol through the pores is almost as bad as alcohol through the mouth.

THIS, SAY THE "body rub" manufacturers, would be confiscation of property worth millions of dollars. However, prohibition confiscated property of brewers worth hundreds of millions and at the same time made bootleg whiskey the national drink. It has been settled that the people have a right

MOTHER LEADS BOY TO WEDDING

Worcester, Feb. 4.—At her bedside in the City Hospital, where she lies in a grim battle with death, pretty Mary O'Connor, hardly 18, was to become a bride today—and 21-year-old Raymond Wentworth was to be the sober-faced bridegroom.

Victim of a mysterious shooting after an automobile tryst with her "best boy friend," Mary has but a slim chance for recovery—still, according to relatives of the boy and girl, the marriage should take place.

Mrs. Eugene F. Wentworth, mother of the chastened and regretful Raymond, and Mrs. Anna G. O'Connor, Mary's mother, have been opposed to any marriage between the youthful couple, but their consent came after Mary and Raymond told a story of their love trysts.

"I've known for a year," said

SEA AND COLD CLAIM 10 LIVES; SIX KILLED IN COLLAPSE OF WALL

New Britain, Ct., Feb. 4 (A. P.).—Six men are known to have been crushed to death, eleven others, some in a serious condition, are at New Britain General Hospital, and ten are unaccounted for as the result of the collapse of a brick wall at the foundry of North & Judd Manufacturing Company on East Main street today.

WHIPPLE IS SUED BY SCHARTON FOR $500,000

A suit for $500,000, an outcome of the famous Victor Searles case, has been brought by Attorney William R. Scharton of Boston, against Sherman L. Whipple.

Scharton, in filing suit, declared that the sum named was one-half the fee received by Attorney Whipple for settling the claim of Victor Searles to the estate of his millionaire uncle, Edward F. Searles.

According to Attorney Scharton, the suit resulted from the failure of Whipple to keep an agreement with him to divide whatever fee he obtained in the will case.

Today Attorney Whipple filed his answer, constituting a complete denial. He said he did not receive a million dollar fee and that he never agreed to divide with Scharton.

The latter in his declaration sets forth that for a long time prior to September, 1920, he was counsel for Victor A. Searles, and was employed by Searles to contest the probate of a will of Edward F. Searles, an uncle, in Essex County.

THUGS RIP THROUGH WALLS TO JEWEL SAFE

Burglars forced their way into the Elgin Jewelry Company at No. 671 Washington street today, ripped open a double-door safe and stole diamonds, watches and other jewelry valued at approximately $15,000. The gang worked for at least six hours, police say, before they accomplished their task.

Entrance was gained through a skylight in the rear of a building at No. 669 Washington street. There the combination of the Kaufman Hat store safe was knocked off, but the job was abandoned, apparently because the safe was too near the door. They then forced their way into a lunchroom at No. 673 Washington street. Finding no safe, they ripped through a metal wall and partitions to the jewelry store.

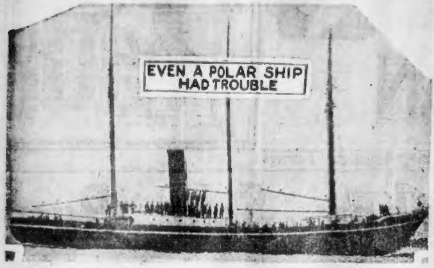
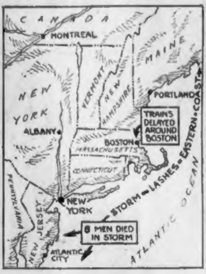
BLINDING SNOW AND TERRIFIC WIND TIE UP TRAFFIC ON LAND, SEA AND MAIL ROUTES IN AIR

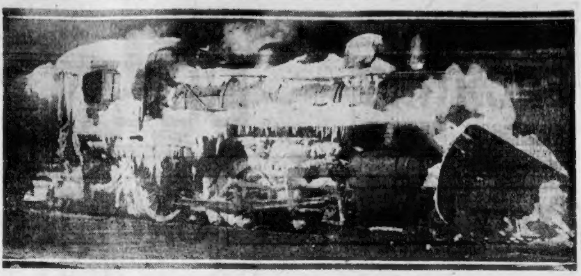


Here is a veteran ship of north polar expeditions, Peary's Roosevelt, disabled in storm that sweeps the whole Atlantic Coast from Labrador in the north to the Canal Zone far in the gulf at the south.

Just one of many like experiences in Boston today. Miss Marie Sturpeney of Brighton trying to keep the windshield of her car clean of sticky snow flakes.



Map shows how storm is almost central over New England, costing at least eight lives.



This shows how they're coming "into port" at South Station today. One of the huge Boston & Albany locomotives as it appeared on arrival from the West, bringing in its train, besides passengers and baggage, considerable air mail transferred from planes at Chicago. Air mail service between New York and Chicago is suspended, and letters and packages from the West are transferred at Chicago to trains to be forwarded to the East.

WORST STORM OF WINTER AS 60-MILE GALE LASHES COAST

the city all night, as the storm gathered in intensity hour by hour.

Fair and colder weather was predicted for tomorrow by the weather bureau, the storm being expected to spend itself by tonight.

Blowing sixty miles an hour on the coast and rising to ninety miles at the fishing banks, a northeast gale brought distress to all kinds of shipping, whether in harbor or on the tempest-wracked North Atlantic.

TIES UP RAIL LINES.

A furious battle was waged by city employes and the emergency crews of the transportation systems to keep the main arteries of travel open, but line after line of street car and steam train service was reported out of commission.

Women employed at City Hall and other municipal buildings in Boston were sent home at 2 o'clock by Mayor Nichols, as were all women employes at the Army Base, while provisions were made for allowing as many men as possible to leave early.

Worcester department stores sent home in the forenoon all employes not living near the centre of the city, because of the condition of car service.

TWO ESCAPE DEATH.

Blinded by the swirling snow, two Haverhill men, Herbert Eason and Hollis Bruce, narrowly escaped death when a Georgetown to Haverhill train crashed into their truck on a railroad crossing in Bradford, knocking the truck twenty-five feet and tossing the men into a snow-bank.

A mother and two children living on the outskirts of Haverhill fled through the storm to refuge at a neighbor's house as fire destroyed the cottage of Dana A. Brewster and snow-drifts prevented the fire apparatus from getting near the burning dwelling.

More than 1,600 city employes in Boston were put to work on the streets at an early hour by Public Works Commissioner James H. Sullivan, who planned to call out 2,000 contract employes later, if necessary.

All forces of the paving, street cleaning and sanitary divisions of the Public Works Department were put to work removing the snow with the aid of 55 contract plows, 300 wagons and 50 trucks.

Deputy Commissioner William P. Long of the park department ordered out his entire force of 300 employes, with eight motor plows, three large-blade tractor plows and twenty horse-drawn plows and scoops to keep the parkway system open.

AIR MAIL SUSPENDED.

In the air as well as on land and sea the storm waged its fury, air mail service between Chicago and New York being abandoned and telephone and telegraph lines being crippled or useless throughout the east.

The Boston office of the telephone company reported 300 metropolitan lines out of order, sixty circuits between Boston and Plymouth out of commission, serious trouble at Becket and between Fall River and Newport, and no service in operation at all of the Cape beyond Bridgewater.

The Fall River liner Providence, after lying all night in New York Harbor on account of the storm proceeded at slow speed to Newport today and there transferred its passengers to special trains, scheduled to get them to Boston more than 12 hours late. The Providence carried 500 passengers.

Four other steamers that left New York for New England ports anchored for hours in New York Harbor. These were the Colonial liners Concord and Hartford, bound for Providence, with 100 passengers each, and two Fall River line freighters, the Pequonnock and Mohawk.

In Providence, a drop in temperature from 34 to 28 degrees added distress to the confusion already resulting to the confusion already tying up of street car lines and vehicular traffic.

Army tractors were called into use at the Army Base in South Boston to aid more than 30 trucks stalled on Summer street extension.

Among the scores of tie-ups reported on the surface car lines were long delays on the Chelsea-to-Boston lines, due to stalled trucks on the car tracks, while the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad was crippled by an hour's tie-up of a Lynn-bound train at Beachmont station.

Besides the seven lives lost on barges sunk off New Jersey, three men were found dead from exposure in New York city.

The street railways of Greater Boston were hard hit by the snowfall.

Traffic on half a dozen surface lines was paralyzed at the height of the rush-hour period. Boston Elevated emergency crews were kept busy tending to cars that slid off the rails and other accidents, and the city street cleaning crews were ordered out in force to catch up with the all-night deluge of misty rain and snow.

Boston streets were piled deep with a blanket of snow on top of the slush left over from the last storm, making the movement of automobiles hazardous and causing scores of near-accidents throughout the city.

ALL TRAINS DELAYED.

Trains bringing commuters into Boston were delayed from ten minutes upward, while through trains from distant points were running far behind schedules.

No-school signals were sounded by the authorities of Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, Medford, Malden, Milton, Quincy and many other communities, while Everett called off sessions for all but high school pupils.

The weather man saw a possibility of snow continuing to fall throughout the day and evening and into tomorrow, but he reported that the chances favored a clearing up by tonight, with the wind shifting to west and diminishing.

A snow plow slid off the rails on Washington street, near the entrance to Forest Hills terminal of the West Roxbury surface car lines, tying up traffic in both directions as it skidded across both tracks. Passengers headed in town left the stalled cars and walked to the terminal, while the tieup gave many others a long wait on wind and snow-swept street corners.

A trolley car left the rails at Kenmore station, at the junction of Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue, tying up the outbound lines from the Boylston street subway, and delaying traffic for more than half an hour over both inbound and outbound routes during the busiest part of the day.

SEVEN MEN DROWNED.

Seven men were lost from four tugs and nine barges. The whereabouts of all the craft were known with the exception of two unnamed tugs and the barge vapor.

The men believed lost were: Three aboard barge Vapor, reported sunk off Sandy Hook. Three aboard barge Phoenix, wrecked when it came ashore off Sandy Hook. One aboard a Pennsylvania Railroad barge grounded off Asbury Park.

The lives of several others were in danger.

Barnegat Coast Guard station crew put out in a lifeboat from the New Jersey shore today to rescue any men who may be aboard a barge stranded on a reef one mile from Barnegat light.

Five barges were in sight off the coast all having broken away from tugs during the night.

Commander Peary's old Polar exploration vessel, the Roosevelt, previously disabled while towing barges to Miami, Fla., was again buffeted by the new storm, but made port safely at Panama Roads in the Canal Zone in tow of a salvage vessel.

The gale and blizzard lashed the entire coast and while snow buried the northeast, heavy rains deluged the South Atlantic States. Far at sea the storm was even worse than ashore, and the Furness liner Manchester Producer wirelessed for aid in the North Atlantic, where a northeast tempest raged.

The German steamer Hanover went to the assistance of the Manchester Producer. The rudder of the disabled vessel was out of commission, but her skipper was trying to get her to the Azores. She was bound from Halifax to Manchester with apples.

Severely battered, the Canadian rum schooner Oakalee made port at Liverpool, N. S., with a story of having been boarded by a rum patrol crew while far off Cape Cod and a voyage that yielded nothing but gray hairs for the storm-tossed fortune hunters.

Drifts piled up on the roads about Lexington and Concord, effectually shutting off traffic, and the Lexington branch of the Boston & Maine Railroad was in distress, with snow plows out in force trying to get the line in running order again. Lexington, Bedford, Burlington and Concord all call off school.

STORM DRIVES PILOTS BACK TO PORTLAND

Portland, Me., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Shipping was brought to a standstill here by the northeaster which swept up the coast overnight with lightning-like rapidity.

Vessels outward bound were forced to remain at their docks, while the Danish steamer Rosenberg and the American steamer Munalbro, both coal laden, were forced to anchor off Portland Lightship, seven miles from Cape Elizabeth.

Pilots for the first time this Winter were driven back into port. Not much more than an inch of snow had fallen up to noon, but more was expected.

Thousands Storm-Bound on N. Y. Steamships

New York, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Surface car elevated and suburban railway officials reported only slight delays on transit lines from the storm today. Regular service, augmented by special trains at intervals, helped to keep the tracks clear.

Several thousand persons were snowbound on steamers forced to anchor in Long Island Sound.

Only one trans-Atlantic liner, the Royal Mail liner Orduna from Southampton, was expected today. She loomed off Ambrose Channel Lightship, but later was lost to view in the storm. Several ships from south Atlantic and South American ports were reported by radio as nearing port.

Freighter Is Disabled; Rescue Ship Stands by

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 4 (I.N.S.).—Coast Guard headquarters today reported receiving a radio from the steamer George H. Jones saying that the freighter, Solwyn Eddy, was disabled 20 miles southeast of Fenwick Island lightship, near the Maryland coast. A second radio said the Jones was standing by, and it is believed that it will be able to take off the crew. A rough sea is running.

Coast Guard Patrol Boat Missing Off Block Island

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—In the worst blizzard of the Winter, Coast Guard headquarters at New London reported today that efforts to reach by radio the 75-foot patrol boat 234, on duty off Block Island, had been unsuccessful. A 65-mile an hour gale was sweeping the Block Island section.

The cutter Mohave and several destroyers now at sea have been ordered to search for the missing patrol boat.

A blanket of snow, 6 to 8 inches deep on the level and from 2 to 4 feet deep in places where a high wind had blown it into drifts, covered Connecticut.

Trolley and Bus Lines Are Blocked in R. I.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 4 (A.P.)—The storm disarranged trolley and bus service through the Providence area today, particularly bus service between this city and Fall River, Mass. New Haven trains on the Consolidated line between this city and Fall River were delayed during the early morning hours.

Springfield Traffic Blocked by Drifts

Springfield, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—The heaviest snow of the season, drifting badly in outlying sections, impeded transportation today. Trolly lines were functioning with the aid of plows, but with schedules awry. Schools in some suburban towns did not open.

Hit by Autos, 1 Coaster Dead, 1 Is Dying

New Bedford, Feb. 4.—One boy was killed and another, the son of Mayor Edmond P. Talbot, was probably fatally injured, in coasting accidents here today.

Chester L. Terry, 12-year-old son of Charles P. Terry of Assonet, while coasting in that suburb, struck an automobile operated by Walter Travers, and died of a fractured chest in a local hospital.

About the same time seven-year-old Edmond Talbot while coasting near his home at No. 48 Freedom street, collided with a machine operated by Myles White. The boy was taken to St. Anne's Hospital suffering from internal injuries and a possible concussion of the brain.

plosion in the foundry. This theory has been abandoned and it is now believed that the building caved in from the weight of snow on the roof.

Two bodies have been recovered. Another workman died as he was being taken to the hospital. It is feared that the death list will be larger than early estimates.

The walls of the foundry building along East Main street toppled over on the sidewalk. This debris is being searched for bodies, as it is thought that a number of people were walking past the plant at the time.

It is reported that a cupula in which pig iron was being melted blew up.

Wreckage on East Main street was several feet high. Firemen, policemen and voluntary workers tore at the heap. As wall fell, employes in the office of the company were passing.

A general alarm brought the fire department. All policemen and doctors who could be reached were ordered to the place. The North and Judd clubhouse, across the street from the foundry, the private hospital connected with the factory and the day nursery on Winter street were turned into emergency station.

Rev. Walter J. Lyddy of St. Mary's Church, hurried to the wrecked building and gave the last rites of the church to four men, two of whom died a few minutes later. In order to reach one man, he was forced to crawl through a hole in the wreckage, pressing his face against the bricks and snow.

Girl Races With Rum for Boston; Guide Is 'Pete the Prowler'

Pete the Prowler knew all the rum running roads. "The only sore spot is five miles below here," he said.

SYNOPSIS.

Hilda Stone of West Halifax, Vt., formerly a stenographer in Athol, Mass., young, educated and pretty, turned bootlegger to help her husband out of a financial squeeze in his lumber business.

In the first chapter published in the Boston Evening American on Monday, February 1, Hilda described how she made up her mind to become a rum-runner after weeks of worry and indecision. She told how bootlegging appealed to her as the quickest means to make money in large sums. She said she felt she had as much right to smuggle liquor as society leaders and public officials had to buy and drink it.

The visit of a young man named Dick C., was the turning point. In the second chapter she described the warnings given her by Tony whom she met through Dick C., and of the graft levied by the border patrol. In the third instalment of her thrilling life story Hilda told of her first rum-running trip across the Canadian border.

CHAPTER IV.

Montpelier, Vt., Feb. 4.—As Tony and I agreed to start back at 3 o'clock in the morning, and as it was then well after midnight, I decided to lie awake and get all the rest I could. I did not remove my clothing, other than my jacket and boots. I didn't want to oversleep, but my chief reason for fighting to keep awake was due to my doubtful surroundings.

I didn't know but that somebody might try to invade my room, with drink on the premises, but strange to say I hadn't noticed any intoxication among the men down stairs.

Suddenly I awoke with a start. I had dropped off into troubled slumber and had dreamed that I had been trapped by a whole company of soldiers and was on trial before a stern old judge who glared at me. I wondered what mother would think and I thought of my husband's warnings, and—as the door opened for the jury to come in I sat bolt upright on the bed.

I didn't know where I was for a few minutes. I rubbed my eyes and was relieved to think. I was not in court a captive. So mother and Frank wouldn't be grieved after all. It was good to think it was only a nightmare.

I heard a step on the creaky stairs and someone knocked on the door.

"Time to get up!" said the same little man who had escorted me to the room.

"All right!" I answered, relieved to hear a voice. "Tell Tony I will be down in a few minutes.

"I went to a mirror that reminded me of mirrors in those crazy houses at the beach. It made me look terrible. I turned away from it and brushed my bobbed hair without its aid. With the togs I wore there wasn't any toilet to bother with.

Hilda Starts

The little man prepared coffee and a light breakfast and Tony and I went out to the barn. There we met a rough-looking young man who held a whispered conversation with Tony.

"That's Pete the Prowler," Tony explained as he joined me. "He's one of the wise crackers who hang around here. There isn't an inch of the road or a patrol on it that he doesn't know.

"And now we better be moving," added Tony briskly in louder tone. He suddenly became keyed into a new being. He was as taut as a hunted deer. We hopped into the roadster as Pete the Prowler swung open the doors Tony backed out the car.

"The only sore spot is five miles below at this hour," said the "Prowler."

In pitch darkness we headed home. My first race with the law had started at last. I wondered how

HUMMEL IN TILT OVER ABE'S BODY

Fortune Claimant Is Refused View by the Executors in New York

New York, Feb. 4 (I.N.S.)—Henry D. Hummel, driver of a bakery wagon in Portland, Me., today paid homage to the memory of Abe Hummel, millionaire lawyer, whom young Hummel claims was his father.

Following the removal of Hummel's body from the liner Olympic which brought it from London to the funeral church, Young Hummel was the first to visit the remains. He was accompanied by Frederick W. Hinckley, his lawyer.

Henry, however, was unable to see the face of the late millionaire as the body still remained in a lead casket.

Young Hummel said he wanted to see the body of his father for sentimental reasons and also because he wanted to identify it.

A. V. Van Vleck, official of the trust company in which the Hummel will was deposited, said he would be in charge of funeral services but that he had no intention of permitting the casket to be opened. The identity of the body of Hummel, he said, had been certified to by American consular authorities in London.

The Hummel will, which disposes of an estate of about $1,125,000 to the dead man's sisters during their life time and to his nephew, Abe Kaffenburg, at their death, will be offered for probate after the funeral.

Young Hummel is prepared to contest this will, claiming he is Hummel's son and that Hummel married his mother, Leila Farrell, actress.

Stepfather Buried Mother of Abe Hummel's "Heir"

Portland, Me., Feb. 4 (A.P.)—Leila Farrell, mother of Henry D. Hummel, who went to New York last night to prove that she was the wife of "Abe" Hummel, died in New York city on December 1, 1896, and was buried under that name in Evergreen Cemetery here three days later, records at the city clerk's office show.

She was born in this city on March 20, 1867, according to the records, but the death certificate gave her age as 27 years and seven months.

The bill of the undertaker was paid by her step-father, Cyrus Jellerson. The body of her father, John H. Farrell, who died at the age of 34 in 1873, is buried in the same plot.

Henry Hummel was brought up by his grandmother after death of his mother.

IN WOODS FOR THREE WEEKS

"Her Beauty Made Me Do It," He Pleads; Abducted Her in Car

Camden, N. J., Feb. 4 (A.P.)—In a cabin hidden in the woods on the outskirts of the city, detectives early today found seventeen-year-old Genevieve Vase, who has been missing from her home in Syracuse, N. Y., for several weeks.

With her was Myron Faling, 32, also of Syracuse, married and a father.

The girl was taken back to Syracuse by her father, apparently overjoyed at her release. Faling was taken in custody by Sheriff Frances of Madison county, N. Y., having waived extradition.

The father attempted to attack Faling when they met in the Camden county jail, but was restrained by police.

"It was her beauty made me do it," said Faling when questioned by police. "I was crazy, I guess. But I had seen her and I admired her and I could not get her out of my head.

"When the chance came I carried her away. I loved her; I was mad about her. I have guarded her and taken care of her and have not harmed her. She will tell you I have always treated her with respect. But I could not bare to have her leave me."

"I did not know Faling," Miss Vase said, "except just to speak. One day three weeks ago I saw him on the streets. He had an automobile and asked me to take a ride.

"I got in and he would not let me out again. We drove and drove and finally came to the cabin in the woods, after many hours' travel. He made me get out and said if I dared to run away he would follow me and shoot me."

Springfield, Feb. 4.—An explosion, which rocked the downtown section for blocks, today wrecked the filling station of the Atlantic Refining Company at State street and Columbus avenue, and injured Ernest K. Appleby, twenty-six, of Berkshire street, who was cut by a shower of glass.

Gas, which escaped either through a leak or from a heater in the basement, caused the blast. The solid structure was raised more than a foot in the air by the force of the explosion.

Police and firemen rushed to the scene. Appleby, the only person in the building, suffered multiple cuts about the face and hands and from shock.

Firemen said the gas was ignited by fire in the boiler. Damage is about $15,000.

SHOW ME THE WAY TO GO HOME

And as soon as the opera closes she packs her magnificent wardrobe, eager to return to her own fireside. Domestic bliss is a greater attraction to her than the plaudits of the throng, and home her chief ambition.

BOOTLEG SAYS HE PAID TOM QUIGLEY $50 MONTH

paying protection all the time, but all I get is the worst of it."

It was brought out that Crowley was the mayor's assistant, but this was excluded by the court.

SAYS HE PAID OFFICER.

"Go home, you are always kicking. Everything will be all right," Mayor Quigley replied to his complaints, according to the witness.

He was followed to the stand by William, alias Wolfe Palais, of Winthrop, who testified he paid $5 a week for six or seven weeks to Officer McGreevey of the Chelsea police department, one of the witnesses.

Palais admitted that he is under two Federal indictments for liquor law violations, and is under bail in both cases.

Barlow testified Quigley, during his first campaign, visited the witness at his store and asked him to help his campaign.

Efforts on the part of the government to show that Quigley was aware of the nature of the business conducted by Barlow were objected to by the defense, and that line of questioning was excluded.

Barlow stated he was raided by Chelsea police during the Jewish Passover in 1922, and was brought into court. Later, he said, he visited Mayor Quigley at City Hall to protest about the raid and was told "not to worry."

ACCUSES "TOM" QUIGLEY.

The witness also testified that he paid $50 a month for protection to Inspector Tom Quigley, brother of the Mayor, and one of the defendants.

"What do you think, Charlie," he quoted Inspector Quigley as saying to him in his store, "I'm a nigger? I want so much a month, $100."

Barlow was questioned as follows:

Q—How long have you lived in Chelsea? A—Fifteen years.

Q—Are you married? A—Yes, and I have a family.

Q—Were you engaged in business in Chelsea in 1922? A—Yes.

Q—Where? A—At No. 78 Winnisimmet street.

Q—What was the character of that business? A—Delicatessen, tonic, ice cream, tobacco and liquors.

Q—What kind of liquor? A—Moonshine and alky.

Q.—Who was mayor of Chelsea then? A.—Mayor Quigley.

Q.—Did you know him personally? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you ever have occasion to speak to him? A.—Yes.

Q.—When? A.—When he was running for mayor the first time.

Q.—Where did you have that conversation? Attorney Feeney objected on the ground that the conversation antedated the conspiracy indictment charges. Stone answered:

"We will attempt to establish relations between Mayor Quigley and the witness prior to the dates in the indictment." The court allowed the question.

Q.—What was the conversation with Quigley at your store? A.—He said I should help him in his campaign for mayor.

Q.—Was that the first time he called upon you? A.—No.

Q.—When prior to that did he call? A.—Three or four times before he began the campaign.

RAIDED ON PASSOVER.

Q.—Did he know the kind of business you were conducting when he called on you?

Attorney Feeney again objected, and this time his objection was sustained by the court.

Q.—You sold liquor in 1922 in Chelsea? A.—Yes.

Q.—Were you raided by the Chelsea police in 1922? A.—Yes, during the Jewish Passover.

Q.—By whom were you raided? A.—By Sergeant Barden. He sent in a marked $2 bill.

Q.—Did you later see Mayor Quigley. A.—Yes.

Q.—Where? A.—City Hall.

Q.—Have any conversation with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—State the conversation? A.—I said to him, "It's a fine thing after I did what I did for them to send a fellow to buy a half-pint." He said I should go home and don't worry about it anyhow.

Q.—Were you brought to court as a result of the raid? A.—Yes. (Here further questions were excluded by the court.)

SOLD AGAIN AFTER RAID.

Q.—Did you continue to sell after the raid? A.—Yes, I sold the same thing.

Q.—Do you know Tom Quigley? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see him at your store? A.—Yes.

Q.—What year was it? A.—1923.

Q.—What month? A.—The first of the year, a week after the mayor got on his chair there.

Q.—What month? A.—Why the New Year.

Q.—What's the first month of the year? A.—I don't know, it was the first of the New Year.

Q.—What was the month of the election? A.—Before Christmas.

Q.—Was it December? Here Attorney Feeney objected and said the witness had said "before Christmas."

Q.—When you met Tom Quigley what was the conversation? A.—Well, he walked in and he stood up there and he said: "What do you think, Charlie, I'm a nigger? I want so much a month, $100." I said: "Where do I get off if I give you $100 and it costs me so much for protection?" He said: "I'll let you off for $50."

Q.—He asked you for $50? A.—Yes, and I gave it.

Q.—Did you see him again? A.—Yes, he came in again for another excuse.

Q.—State what he said on this visit and what you said? A.—He came in and he wanted I should buy liquor. He said it would cost $2.10 a gallon. I said: "What do you want to do, try and trim me."

Q.—What else was said? A.—He said: "I want you should take thirty-five gallons." I told him I couldn't take it, I had no place to put it. Finally I did take it.

Q.—Where did you put it? A.—I hid it in a hole in the store.

Q.—How large a hole was it? A.—It was big enough to hold 100 gallons.

Q.—How many times in all did Tom Quigley come into your store to sell liquor? A.—Three times.

Q.—The next time what was the conversation? A.—He said I should buy alcohol at $6.10 a gallon. I said I have no place to put it.

PAID FOR YEAR AND HALF.

Q.—How long did you pay $50 a month to the police? A.—How long did I pay it? A year and a half.

Q—Were you raided during that period? A—Yes.

Q—By whom? A—Tom Quigley, Barden and some other officers.

Q—Did you see Quigley in your store? A—Tom? Yes.

Q—How long before the raid was that? A—Three days.

Q—State the conversation. A—He said to me: You're a wise guy. You buy from somebody else. I want you should buy.

Q—Any reference then to $50? A—I gave him a check.

Q—Did you have occasion to see Lawrence Quigley after the first raid? A—Yes, on the following Saturday in his store on Broadway, Chelsea.

Q.—Conversation with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you say to him? A.—I said: "Why did you treat me like that? Why is my money taken if you do that? If you don't want me in business here, why don't you say so?"

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said: "Go home, you're crazy."

Q.—Did you continue to do business after that? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you see Tom Quigley after that? A.—Yes, in my store.

Q.—What did you say to him? A.—I said: "Why are you plaguing me? I'm paying protection, and I'm no worse than anyone else? Why are they always laying onto me?"

WAS CALLED "TOO WISE."

Q.—What did he say to that? A.—He said: "You're too wise."

Q.—Did you continue to sell liquor after that? A.—Yes.

Q.—And did you pay protection money? A.—All the time. I never stopped paying.

Q.—Did you see Tom Quigley again after that? A.—Yes, he came up to the store and says: I want $100.

Q.—What did you say? A.—I said I would give it on Monday. I didn't have it then.

Q.—When did you see him again? A.—In the next two weeks I had three visits from the police.

Q.—How soon after that conversation with Tom Quigley did the police raid you? A.—The next Sunday morning.

Q.—Did you see Mayor Quigley about that raid? A.—Yes, that morning I says to him: "If you people don't want me in business in Chelsea say so. I was caught last week, and I paid $150 to Crowley, and I don't see why they're bothering me. I'm paying protection all the time, but all I get is the worst of it."

Q.—Who is Crowley? A.—The mayor's assistant.

Feeney's objection to that was sustained and it was stricken out.

Q.—What did the mayor say to you? A.—He says: "Go home; you're always kicking. Everything will be all right."

Q.—How long have you been in the liquor business altogether? A.—Four or five years.

Q.—When did you stop the business? A.—In 1924, the Summer, in August near Labor Day.

$1,500 TOWARD CAMPAIGN.

Q.—How many times did you give money to Mayor Quigley's campaign? A.—Four times.

Q.—How much altogether? A.—About $1,500.

Next Attorney Feeney took the witness for cross-examination.

Q.—Did you engage Mr. Vokes as your counsel? A.—Yes.

Q.—Are you willing to tell us everything you said to him and he said to you. A.—I don't understand you.

Here Judge Brewster interposed and informed Barlow that he was not compelled by law to relate the conversation between him and his counsel. Barlow said he would waive all privileges and agreed to answer Attorney Feeney's questions.

Q.—Did you tell the court here in direct testimony about your income tax, about not paying it? A.—No.

Q.—When you went to see Attorney Vokes did you tell him that you were threatened because of not having paid an income tax?

Here U. S. District Attorney Williams objected, and a conference at the bench followed, and Barlow, attempting to get into the conference, was waived aside, and sent off the stand.

Q.—Did you tell Mr. Vokes that Mr. Stone told you that if you didn't say Quigley and his brother got money from you you would be punished for not paying your income tax?

Another objection here by Attorney Williams.

Q.—How many times were you raided by the Chelsea police from 1922 until you stopped business? A.—Four or five times.

Q.—Did they go in with crow bars more than once? A.—Once.

Q.—Were you ever raided by the Federal officers? A.—Yes.

Q.—When? A.—Twice.

Q.—When was the last time? A.—March, 1923.

PUZZLED ABOUT RAID.

Q.—During the two or three years you ra nthe store the Federal officers brought you into court more than once? A.—Yes.

Q.—They only brought Dick O'Brien in once? (O'Brien, according to the witness was an employe.) Witness started to explain, but Attorney Feeney did not push the question.

Q.—Before you closed up did the Chelsea police raid you every day? A.—What you mean that?

Q.—Well, they came in two or three times a day before you closed up, did they not? A.—No. They came in a couple of times a week sometimes.

Q.—Who worked for you in this store? A.—Dick O'Brien.

Q.—Where did he live? A.—With me.

Q.—Did he have a room in your house? A.—The witness hesitated, then said: You want to make me begin in the middle. I want to tell this thing right. Finally he answered: I had a room for him on Williams street.

Q.—Did you sell liquor in 1920? A.—Yes.

Q.—Wha work did you do before you sold liquor? A.—I had a shop repairing shoes.

Q.—Where was that? A.—No. 104 Winnissimmet street.

Q.—In 1922 who was in the store? Dick? A.—Myself.

Q.—Did you go into the store at all while Dick was selling liquor? A.—Yes. In the night time.

Q.—Did you have any other work while he was selling liquor in your store? A.—Yes. I worked for my brother in the roofing business.

Q.—How long did you work for him? A.—Only a few days at a time.

Q.—So while Dick O'Brien was selling you kept away from the store? A.—Yes, yes.

Q.—So you kept under cover? A.—I didn't keep under cover.

Q.—Now, in 1922 they sent some one into you with a marked bill? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you give the bill to some one else? Witness demurred at answering, and Attorney Feeney said: "You and I are getting along all right, aren't we?"

"Yes," answered the witness.

USED MARKED BILL.

Q.—Then answer the question, wont you? A.—Well, I like to begin at the beginning. You want to start in the middle.

Q.—Who sold the pint of liquor? A.—You mean the fellow I left in the store?

Q.—Yes, who was it? A.—Dave Morland.

Q.—You werent in the store? A.—No.

Q.—You came right down when you heard of the raid? A.—Yes.

Q.—You got there while the officers were there? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did they show you the marked bill and paper with number on it corresponding with bill, and did you take the bill from the till while they were there? A.—Yes.

FATAL STABBING DETAILED BY DEFENDANT

Robert L. C. Shafer of Gray street, Boston, charged with murder in the fatal stabbing of Arthur J. "Frenchy" Levesque, a sailor, took the witness stand in his own behalf today and told the jury the victim twice ran into a knife which he, the witness, held out merely as a bluff to scare him off.

The testimony was completed at noon and the case was expected to be given to the jury in East Cambridge Superior Court before nightfall.

Levesque died of stab wounds following a fight at a rink in Cambridge on December 3.

Shafer testified Levesque had accosted him and said: "If you want to do fancy skating go in the center of the rink."

As they were leaving the rink Levesque struck him, Shafer said, and a crowd of threatening sailors gathered. Shafer testified he held out his knife and Levesque ran into it, then struck him on the jaw, and as Levesque came close he felt the knife touch Levesque again.

As he was being led to the police station by Patrolman Walter L. Maher the crowd surged around and shouted threats while the officer held them at bay with his gun, he said.

Shafer admitted he had been sentenced to eight years in a Tennessee reformatory and had served two years. He denied he had tripped Levesque.

Mercier's Will Reveals He Had No Wealth

Brussels, Feb. 4 (A.P.)—The will of Cardinal Mercier, made public today, says that he was without personal fortune, having consecrated to good works his income from publications and other sources.

Moneys on hand at the time of his death, the will stipulates, will be spent in paying for his funeral and for the arrears in his household expenses. Any surplus is to go to charity.

The Cardinal leaves to his nephews his equity in a cottage in the country, and advises them to make their living by their own work.

ESCAPES TWICE IN DAY WHILE SHOTS FLY

While being taken to the Roxbury Court today to face a charge of drunkenness, Edward Carey, eighteen, of Parker street, Roxbury, escaped for the second time in a few hours. Five shots were fired after him in vain.

Carey broke from the grasp of Patrolman Michael Sullivan as the patrol, with three other prisoners and two special officers, drew up in front of the courthouse in Roxbury street.

Sullivan fired the shots at the fugitive, but he kept on and eluded his pursuers.

Arrested early today by Patrolman McFardland of the Dudley street station at a dance in the Hibernian building in Dudley street, Carey escaped and was later cornered in a bowling alley.

Police were searching all basements in the neighborhood in the belief that Carey crawled through a window to a hiding place.

SAYS GIRLS COPIED BOB FROM PARIS UNDERWORLD

The moral breakdown of the youth of America was laid to changed habits of drink, the automobile, big wages, war psychology and the introduction into this country of the atmosphere of Paris by Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware at the State House today. He is a Congregationalist minister and urged the Committee on Legal Affairs to make drastic changes in laws affecting night clubs. Sawyer declared the first bobbed heads came from the underworld women of Paris.

"Now all the world is bobbed," he declared. "I am not saying anything against bobbed hair, but I am showing the source of many of our present ideas of personal makeup, such as the lipstick. The younger generation is living under the influence, not of the English Protestant nor the Irish and French Catholic, but of Paris."

FAMILY FLEES HAVERHILL FIRE AS SNOW STALLS KIT

Haverhill, Feb. 4—Fire destroyed the bungalow of Dana A. Brewster, Jr., in Prospect Park, Saunders Hill section, today, driving Mrs. Saunders and her two young children out into the storm, clad only in their night clothing. Brewster, who had gone to look at some traps in the woods, returned to find his home in flames, his family fled and firemen stalled in snowdrifts at the bottom of the hill, a quarter mile away.

YOUTH TO WED SHOOTING VICTIM

Mrs. Wentworth today, "that my son and Mary O'Connor wanted to marry, but I didn't know that things had reached such a climax as they have.

"I've never met Mary but she will be my daughter now, will be when Father Fitzgerald (the Rev. Edward Fitzgerald, pastor of St. John's Church) makes her the wife of my boy.

"Her mother said her daughter was too good for my son; that she would not sanction a marriage; that they never could marry; but now he's got to marry her to save her the suffering and torments that women have been going through since the beginning of time.

"Thank God, my boy, after he has given this little girl his name, will be able to look the world in the face, straighten back his shoulders and know, deep down in his heart, that he is a man."

"I knew that Mary had been in love with young Wentworth for a year," said Mrs. O'Connor, brokenly, "but I didn't know it had gone so far. Why, my little girl is just a baby; just a little girl.

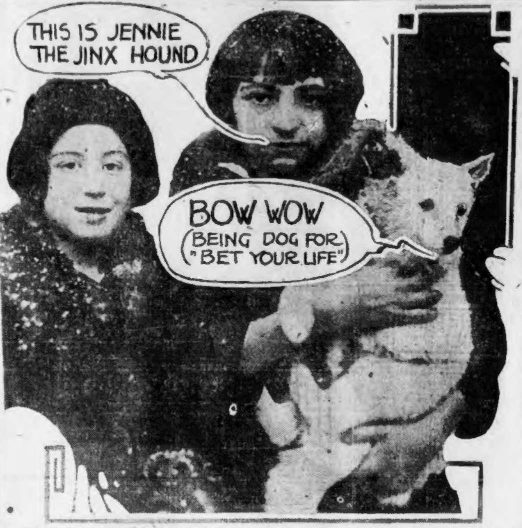
"But I know how it is. I'm a woman, and no one outside of a woman knows how it is with a girl and her son."

The marriage, if it takes place today, will mark the climax of a dramatic story that has been followed with great interest throughout all Worcester, where young Wentworth, according to the police, begot him a reputation as a sheik.

He is charged with carrying a dangerous weapon and is out on $2,500 bail, furnished by his mother, who, since the mysterious shooting, has kept a heavy eye on all his movements.

Not yet has the explanation of the manner in which Mary came by her bullet wound been accepted by the authorities, but it is expected when Wentworth appears in court the mystery of the alleged love tryst may be cleared up.

"HOUN' DAWG" HEROINE OF FIRE



THIS IS JENNIE THE JINX HOUND
BOW WOW (BEING DOG FOR "BET YOUR LIFE")

This is Jennie, the dog that barked so loudly she awakened her proud owners, Carmella (left) and Catherine Marina, when fire swept a factory at No. 244 Commercial street, twenty feet from their home, No. 271-275 North street, North End, today. They gave the alarm and seventy-five persons fled into the blizzard.

75 FLEE FIRE IN NORTH END FACTORY

Seventy-five persons fled from the five-story block at No. 271-275 North street, North End, today as fire raged on the top floors of the building of the San-Man Chocolate Company, No. 244 Commercial street, and flames licked the sides of the nearby tenement.

Awakened by the barking of their tiny dog, Jennie, Carmella and Catherine Marina were among the first to see the danger to the families in the threatened tenement and helped to spread the alarm.

The fire started on the fourth floor of the five-story factory building and quickly burned through the top floor and the roof. Two alarms were sounded and firemen got the blaze under control before it could spread to other buildings. The apartment house is only twenty feet from the rear of the factory.

The damage was estimated at $3,000. The cause was undetermined.

Waltz Dance in Contest

A waltz contest will be held in the old time dancing revival in the Strand Ballroom, 177 Huntington avenue, tonight. Virginia reels, quadrilles, lancers, galop and schottische will be danced. Brigham and Poole will play.

DRYS DENOUNCE CHURCH BEER STAND

Washington, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Advocacy of light wines and beer by the Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal Church provoked a volcanic outburst of comment today from various organizations interested in prohibition and led also to some fireworks in Congress.

Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon League issued a statement denying in detail the conclusions of fact on which the society based its decision.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Temperance said that the Episcopal church had "contributed nothing to the triumph of the prohibition law and its attempt to betray it will be without consequence."

PRINT STATEMENTS.

As soon as the Senate met, Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, who has a beer and wine bill pending, put into the record the announcement made in New York on behalf of the Episcopal Society by Dr. James Empringham, but it was admitted only after it was agreed to print with it the reply issued by Mr. Wheeler.

When Senator Willis, Republican, Ohio, objected to accepting the one without the other, Senator Edge replied he gladly would permit the Wheeler statement to be put into the record because it seemed to him "so profoundly ridiculous."

"We'll let the country be the judge of that," rejoined Senator Willis.

WHEELER'S REPLY.

In his statement today Mr. Wheeler disputed directly the six points set forth by Dr. Empringham. He declared prohibition had stimulated rather than eliminated scientific temperance teaching; that "deans of colleges and universities and high school principals have denied the wet slander that youth is as drunken today as when the license system existed; that prohibition has not only discouraged consumption of wine and beer, but has reduced them to a small fraction of the former amount; that disrespect for law was not created by prohibition; that there is no class legislation about prohibition, for the rich can buy more deviltry of any kind, including booze, than the poor, but the law does not cause that."

Hub Rector Backs Beer View; Says Dry Law Fails

Church circles in Boston today were vastly stirred by the decrying of the Volstead Act by the Church Temperance Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Outside the Episcopal vale as regards religious beliefs, the enemies of the Volstead ban and of prohibition generally, looked upon the statement of the Rev. Dr. James Empringham, secretary of the Temperance Society in New York, as a decided victory.

Dr. Empringham, in a startling statement issued in New York, declared frankly that a recent questionnaire taken among the 20,000 members of the Church Temperance Society disclosed that the belief existed that prohibition had destroyed the work of 50 years of the temperance movement.

Only modification of the Volstead law to permit light wines and beers, and a campaign of education, can bring temperance about, the members agreed, according to Dr. Empringham.

PROHIBITION FAILS.

In Boston today, the Rev. Edwood Worcester, rector of Emanuel (Episcopal) Church, bespoke his admiration for Dr. Empringham and agreed with the contention that something is needed to replace the saloon and that prohibition has failed to reveal such a substitute.

"I believe there should be some adequate social substitute for the saloon," said Dr. Worcester. "I tried to find one after prohibition went into effect, but failed.

"Many people believed that the motion picture theatre would take the place of the saloon, but it has not. An adequate substitute is still needed; some place where men may gather and meet one another.

"Whether the saloon should return is one of the big questions connected with the subject of a modification of the prohibition amendment. Where would the beer and wine be dispensed?

"I admire Dr. Empringham very much. He is a scientific man. I believe that prohibition is the greatest social experiment any modern nation has attempted, and I had hoped it was going to eliminate alcohol as a beverage in the United States.

"CAN'T LEGISLATE THIRST."

"The results achieved in connection with our health work at Emanuel Church are the best criterion I can go by. This work has been carried on for twenty years, and since prohibition I believe we have had not over 10 per cent. of the cases to deal with relating to alcohol that we formerly had.

"I think the people who now drink whiskey or other strong alcoholic beverages would not be satisfied with beer and wine. I think they wish to obtain the effect that strong alcoholic drinks give as quickly as they can.

"I am not quite prepared either to say that I approve or disapprove of what Dr. Empringham says about necessity for modifying the Volstead Act."

The temperance organization of which Dr. Empringham is secretary, numbers twenty-one Episcopal bishops and many ministers, as well as former members of the Anti-Saloon League, on its rolls.

TAPPED TILL TO SHAKE A TOE

Antonio Sanzi danced to the East Boston Court today, but he didn't pay any piper immediately, having paid out $195 so far on his dancing lessons to make a hit with the girls.

You've got to have nifty feet if you'd make the grade with the flappers, Antonio explained in confessing his daily thefts from the cash drawer of his employer, John Cioffi, a baker.

Antonio, who is 18 and lives in Cottage street, East Boston, had a pair of stubs on the ends of his ankles that seemed to respond only to skilled—and high-priced—instruction, he explained further, and it became necessary for him to bolster up his dancing budget with a few loans.

Tony pleaded guilty to the larcenies, which he said figured about $5 a day until yesterday when he boosted the ante to $26.

The police believe Antonio is not counting high enough.

OLD HIGHER RATE OF INCOME TAX HANGS OVER YOU!

Washington, Feb. 4 (I.N.S.).—Unless the new Federal revenue act is passed by March 1, collection of taxes on 1925 incomes may be made at the higher rates of the old law, Under Secretary of the Treasury Winston declared today.

Income tax returns must be in by midnight, March 15, unless Congress adopts a resolution extending the time.

Winston said two weeks will be required to distribute blanks and taxpayers must have a few days in which to prepare returns.

In case passage is held up beyond March 1, payers will be advised to remit one-fourth of their assessment.

HUNT FOUR ALIENS WHO QUIT SHIP AT BEVERLY

Boston immigration authorities Beverly police began a hunt today for four members of the crew of the British coal steamer Clintonia, who "jumped ship" when the steamer docked at Beverly. All four are aliens. They were given shore leave and failed to return to the steamer today. The men are Ahmid Jee, Gee Koulta, Petime Khan and Galeme Mohamid. They told members of the crew, it was said, that they intended to go to Detroit.

CHARLESTON CHAMP WON IN 22 AND HALF HOURS

New York, Feb. 4 (I.N.S.).—For having danced the Charleston 22½ hours John Gioia, who is married and has two children, today will be acclaimed "Charleston champion" of the world. Tonight he will be presented a trophy cup. In addition, he will receive a week's engagement to dance the Charleston at movie theatres.

The endurance contest which Gioia won started Tuesday midnight in a Broadway ballroom and came to an abrupt end when the manager of the ballroom declared the contest concluded.

At that hour of the eighteen entries only three men, including Gioia, remained. The judges gave Gioia the decision because he finished more robustly and because his dancing was generally "more epileptic." Gioia's time surpasses the previous record of 17 hours 56 minutes.

Praises New Method that Heals Rupture

In Spite of Heavy Lifting the Rupture Never Came Back

You Can Try It FREE

In spite of heavy lifting and an absolute disregard for the fact that he was badly ruptured, John C. Webb, of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, has corrected his trouble of many years by an amazing new appliance.

JOHN C. WEBB

"I am entirely freed of the rupture," he writes. "It is about two years since I quit wearing the appliance and I have at no time felt a return of the rupture even though I have done some very heavy lifting."

Many other rupture sufferers, men, women and children have been freed of rupture by this new discovery. Many astounding cases testify as to the completeness of this method of healing. Men who work at heavy muscle straining labor; athletes who spend hours on the football field or at some other equally strenuous sport; women who, at their household tasks, must bend or stoop constantly have all been benefited by this new way.

So small that it can not be noted beneath the closest fitting garment and so planned that it can be washed each day—it assures freedom from irritation. Constructed along scientific lines, binding the separated muscles together and retaining the rupture with safety and comfort, constantly it works to heal the rupture.

We are so sure of what it will do we will let you try it free. Write today for free trial offer, sent in plain, sealed envelope.

YOUTH OF ALL AGES PRESENT AT PERFORMANCE OF LOHENGRIN

(Posed Especially for Boston Evening American Staff Photographer Between the Acts at the Opera.)
MISS HARRIET SALTONSTALL MISS CLAIRE ELWES LADY WINIFRIDE ELWES MISS MARGARET ELWES MISS DOROTHY LAWRENCE

CHILDREN MUCH IN EVIDENCE AT OPERA

"LOHENGRIN," THE TRIED AND TRUE, DREW YOUTH of all years to the Opera House for a matinee. Verily it was the children's day in the rose and gold music temple. Little folk were everywhere, in the boxes, under the wing of fond parents; likewise in the orchestra stalls, and between the acts (just as is the fashion of their elders), they promenaded.

BOSTON'S VERY YOUNG set is doing itself proud this opera season, and getting a vast amount of enjoyment out of the musical repast. No two small children in the whole crowded house were more enthralled than the son and daughter of Mrs. William Gordon Means.

THEY WERE WITH their mother in a box at the right of the horseshoe; nearby James Dean watched the pageant of "Lohengrin" unfold in company with his small daughter. Of course, the youthful son of the Edwin Farnham Greenes was in the Greene box.

AS GUARANTORS of the opera the Greenes naturally have attended every performance, and at several their son, Stephen, has been a keenly interested and critical observer. Mrs. Harris Livermore is another matron bringing her young hopefuls up in the musical way.

BOTH SHE AND Mrs. Robert Livermore have their daugh[illegible] at the opera whenever there is [illegible] matinee. And true devotees are these small girls, listening wide-eyed [illegible] the Chicago songsters fill the air with their melody.

MRS. RUDOLPH WELD had her small daughter at the opera for the matinee. Mrs. Reginald Bird, stately and handsome matron, brought with her to the opera the two daughters, Misses Patricia and Betty Bird.

THE ROBERT TREAT PAINE clan had a third generation in attendance in the persons of Miss Ethel Cummings, Miss Evelyn Cummings and little Miss Margaret Cummings. Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames and her tall and dark-eyed daughter, Miss Mary Ames, in their orchestra stalls.

DEBUTANTES AND Post-debutantes were out for another taste of the musical feast now being served up so lavishly. Miss Mary Weld, ever the ardent follower of opera, had Miss Hope Gaston in her party, also her cousin, Miss Betty Soule.

IT IS MISS SOULE, by the way, and other girls of that set whom one sees so repeatedly at the Opera House during the short but extremely brilliant season. Miss Helen Lovering, Miss Elizabeth Fenno, and Miss Helen Moseley also are in frequent attendance.

MISS CATHERINE ROBB of last year's set, hardly has missed a performance since the Chicago songsters came to town. Neither has Miss Theodora Ayer, nor Miss Anne Tudor, nor Miss Ruth Baylies, nor Miss Emily Coolidge, nor Miss Mabel Bayard Thayer.

BUT TO NAME the young set members at "Lohengrin" would be to recount the boys and girls of practically every Boston family of distinction. Mention of the elders must be made, if the picture is to be presented in all its significance.

THERE WAS many a stunning matron of the senior circle present to lend special importance to the chronicle. Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Mrs. Henry Parkman had box places. Mrs. Joseph D. Leland was in the B. H. Bristow Draper box. Mrs. E. Sohier Welch, Mrs. Wendell Endicott, Mrs. Donald McKay Frost, in fact all the regulars, were there.

AND FOR the "Herodiade" of Massenet, which musical Boston is discussing today over its matutinal coffee and afternoon tea, many a familiar face was seen in the circle of the boxes, in the orchestra and the balcony.

MRS. GASPAR BACON was a beautifully gowned and bewrapped matron in the orchestra, her gown of turquoise and silver almost concealed by a gorgeously ornamented wrap of much the same green-blue lustre.

COLONEL WILLIAM GASTON and Mrs. Gaston, Major-General Clarence R. Edwards and Mrs. Edwards, Samuel Hooper-Hooper, Mrs. Joseph D. Leland, Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Baylies, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Coolidge were glimpsed here or there.

MRS. GASTON was her usual handsome self in black with silver; Mrs. Edwards wore the ebony shade of chiffon which she becomes so well, and Mrs. Coolidge was in gossamer lace, with sequins to enhance its delicate loveliness.

PALMETTO GREEN metal brocade and airy tulle of the same cool color was the costume note contributed by Mrs. Leland to the ensemble. Mrs. William Endicott added a rose pink beaded frock of supple satin and Miss Nancy Murray a satin with swinging bead fringes.

OF BLACK IN different manifestations of the mode were Miss Rosanna Thorndike and Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer. Miss Mary Vinton Murray wore an effective taffeta with flowers in gaily primitive colors marking the hem.

MISS MURRAY WAS squired by the Governor's aide, Major Ross Whistler, to whom she is engaged. The Governor and Mrs. Fuller had places in the orchestra for "Herodiade." Mrs. Fuller, by the way, is entertaining the Chicago stars whenever their professional engagements permit.

THE COMPANY'S musical director and his wife—Giorgio Polacco and Edith Mason—were Mrs. Fuller's luncheon guests. Naturally Mrs. Fuller, herself a musician, takes a vast and abiding interest in the opera season.

IT IS HER PLEASURE to entertain visiting lions of the musical world and her functions are always the happiest of occasions. The Fuller mansion in Beacon street has a marvelous music room, one of the finest for many a league, and pronounced perfect by critics.

THAT ALWAYS interesting opera personage, Mary Garden, made a flying visit to the Opera House during the Lohengrin matinee. Always chic and always faultlessly turned out, Miss Garden was a radiant figure.

HER SILKEN FROCK of phamtom red was a true Garden creation of straight lines and inimitable smartness. Her small chapeau, breathing Paris in its every curve, was of the same vivid red as the frock.

A COAT OF SOFT tweed in golden tan was worn over the frock, and as further safeguard against Boston's frosty air, Miss Garden wore also a rich Russian Sable wrap. Many clinking bracelets, of the slave chain and Egyptian matrix order, added a barbaric note to the ensemble.

Society Views Opera Season as 'Greatest'

MRS. BAYARD THAYER: A magnificent opera season. The management and the opera committee as well is to be congratulated, and Boston is to be congratulated on having this splendid company for a two weeks' visit.

MRS. JOHN TEMPLEMAN COOLIDGE, JR.: Boston is thoroughly enjoying this opera season. Crowded houses and much enthusiasm show that Boston is deeply appreciative of the opportunity to hear such fine music.

MRS. JOHN CHIPMAN GRAY: Of outstanding excellence, "Pelleas and Melisande" is a performance long to be remembered. Financially, and operatically, the season is proving a huge success.

MRS. EDWIN FARNHAM GREENE: Through success after success, the season rises crescendo-like to its climax. Such enormous audiences, such enthusiasm, such a repertory: it is all like the realization of a dream.

MRS. JOSEPH D. LELAND: Such a wonderful performance of "Pelleas and Melisande." A beautiful opera beautifully done. The company is to be congratulated, and Boston as well, on having them here for two weeks.

'Herodiade' Feast for Eye and Well Sung

By MOSES SMITH.

Massenet's "Herodiade" was produced for the first time in Boston last night by the Chicago Civic Opera Company at the Opera House. A large audience heartily applauded a brilliant performance of the work.

Like "Thais," the story of "Herodiade" goes back to ancient times, recounting one form of the Salome legend. The love of Herod for his step-daughter, Salome, has been the occasion for a good many monstrosities, operatic as well as otherwise. Last night was the first time tha. Salome, in any guise, got past the city censor.

This particular Salome is a rather tame creature, which may account for the lack of protest at the Chicago Company's performance. The drama in "Herodiade" has not the startling directness of, say, Strauss' "Salome," nor even of Massenet's own "Thais." The continuity is broken into by absurdly extraneous incidents, and there is little of skillful characterization. Nor does the musical score come up to that of "Thais," even though we are by no means enthusiastic over the latter.

SPECTACLE OPERA.

"Herodiade" is primarily a spectacle opera, a feast for eye and occasionally ear, if the singing happens to be good, which it was last night. It resembles "Aida" a good deal in this respect, but it has not Verdi's redeeming musical beauty, nor the power of the drama in "Aida." But if people want to get spectacle at the opera house they can get it in "Herodiade."

The performance was, as we have indicated, a good one. The pageantry was set forth with becoming lavishness. The scenes were very effective, and in several instances beautiful. A great deal of care and expense were undergone to insure proper costuming. The ballets that were included were very well done. On the other hand, what cuts were made—and there were several—interfered with the effectiveness of the production, notably the Babylonian Dance in the second act, which was particularly appropriate, and the prison scene, which would have lent so much more power to the drama. Of course, something had to be cut, for the opera is too long, but the question is whether the cuts actually made were judicious.

EXCEPTIONAL CAST.

An exceptional cast of singers, to whom proper consideration can hardly be given in limited space, were listed in the various roles. Outstanding was Richard Bonelli as Herode, his first chief part in Boston. In it he had an opportunity to display the admirable quality of his voice, and his exceptional interpretative skill. He confirmed—if any confirmation were needed—that he is the find of the year.

Of the women singers, Edith Mason was the feature, because of her gorgeous tonal quality and superb power at the top of the vocal register. She is in this respect the most dependable singer in the whole company.

OH BOY! THIS HORSE IS LUCKY

PARDON ME A LITTLE HORSE LAUGH!
BIRTHDAY CAKE CANDLES 'NEVERYTHING

VIOLA GILLETTE TEDDY HUDSON

Members of the "Rainbow Rose" company found much enjoyment in honoring the last of the horses which surrended the de livering of the Boston Evening American to motor trucks. "Babe" is living a life of ease on a farm at Stow.

STAGE FOLK AT HORSE'S PARTY

Stow, Feb. 4.—Even "horsies" have birthdays! And birthday parties, too!

Particularly "Babe," the last of the Boston Evening American delivery horses which since his retirement to a life of permanent rest and comfort at Red Acre Farm here, has always celebrated the day of his birth.

In grateful appreciation of "Babe's" many years of faithful service, the Boston Evening American allows the animal a pension of $15 a month, which takes care of all his needs.

He is 24, and members of the "Rainbow Rose" company, now playing at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, joined hands with this paper in making it a memorable event in the "young" life of the horse.

Apples and carrots and lumps of sugar made lovely white "Babe" sit up and ask for more.

He is the famous old Boston Evening American delivery horse whose sleek, white form and proclivities as a trickster brought him fame in the South End before he was pensioned to a life of ease in 1918.

A few lumps of sugar brought truce between surprised "Babe" and his guests and the rest of the birthday celebration went along in fine style.

He is still the same old Babe that delivered millions of Boston Evening Americans to millions of readers.

And maybe he isn't proud! He is reaping the rewards of his efforts of long ago at the horse farm where good horses hope to go when they are old and feeble.

It was a regular party for the show-folks, a red-letter event in their otherwise practical lives.

Viola Gillette and Teddy Hudson took great delight in feeding "Babe" with his birthday cake and as though he sensed their meaning, the happy horse took his first bite.

Billy Tichenor and Margaret Walker sported in the snow with the horse. It was a great time for everybody.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Tablespoonful of Jad Salts if Back Pains or Acids Irritate

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they on longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

PLANES HUNT LOST ACTORS

Los Angeles, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—The Universal Film Company chartered two airplanes today to search for Reginald Denny, film actor, and two other men who left San Diego yesterday in the thirty-four-foot yawl Barbarine for a fishing trip to Ensenada, Lower California.

No word has been received from the craft, which was equipped with wireless, and officials of the film company think the actor and his two companions, Ben Hendricks and Hub Lloyd, might have met disaster in the storm that has been sweeping the Southern California coast for the past several days.

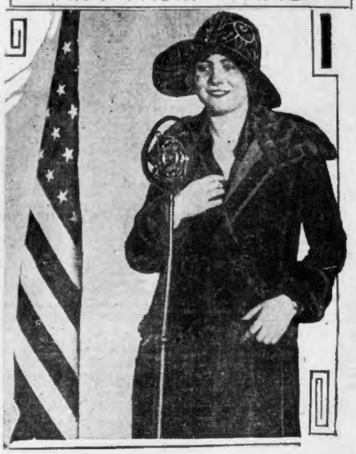
"MISS AMERICA" ON AIR FROM WNAC



Miss Fay Lanphier, winner of the Atlantic City beauty contest, as she appeared at the WNAC Women's Club meeting yesterday. Miss Lanphier talked for several minutes over the radio, during which this picture was snapped by a Boston Evening American photographer. She is appearing in person this week at the new Metropolitan Theatre.

PARTY TONIGHT AT WNAC

In the words of the irrepressible Billy B. Van, the after theatre party by the principals of "Gay Paree" now playing at the Shubert Theatre, which will be broadcast at 11:45 tonight by Station WNAC, The Shepard Stores, will be a positive "wow"—and that's not soft soap either.

The Shuberts have gathered together a stellar list of entertainers and it is expected that all of them will attend the party and add their talents to the general gaiety of the evening. Billy B. Van has taken upon his capable shoulders the task of Master of Ceremonies, and in his hands things should move along at a wonderful rate.

Winnie Lightner, who proved to be a "show stopper" when she sings her numbers, will be present, as will Chick Sale, a riot of fun no matter what he does, and especially good as his comedy "way down East" stuff. Richard Bold, whose rich tenor has already won him wide recognition, will use his voice to good advantage. Alice Boulden and Ruth Gillette, two beauties who really sing, will also be heard.

This after-the-theatre party follows the many parties which have been conducted so successfully by Station WNAC. It is the aim of this Boston station to present the best in entertainment, and when professional entertainers on the par with those who visit Boston give willingly of their talents, the radio audience are the folks who gain.

D. X. Conditions Last Night

By THE DOCTOR

Conditions are still far from good. Static was very bad and the air noisy. It was no kind of a night to go after distance. My best reception was from KWY, WJZ, WTIC and WJAR.

KDKA, who was formerly one of my best stations now comes in with barely a whisper. WTIC, whom, on the other hand, I never could pull in, now comes through like a local station.

Antenna Intelligence

When erecting an antenna, make sure insulators are glazed and corrugated so water will run off before it adds bothersome resistance. Also make provision for lowering the antenna occasionally so the insulators, and even the wire itself, can be wiped free of dirt.

Aerial Must Be Good

It is often difficult to solder the end of the lead-in wire to the aerial; and a poor joint at this point means weak signals. When a new antenna wire and the lead-in are first twisted together, the contact will undoubtedly be good, but exposure to the weather will soon corrode the joint. If it is inconvenient to make a properly soldered joint at this point, it is desirable to make the antenna and lead-in in one piece.

Due to "Dead Spots"

Poor reception of a radio set is sometimes due to the set being installed in a so-called "dead spot." In this case, it is advisable to increase the length of the antenna, using as much as 150 feet, if possible, and also increase its height to determine whether or not this will improve reception.

Radio Queries

Q.—W. P. D., East Lynn. Can you give me any information in regards to the code that is going on all the evening that is causing so much interference? This is so bad that while listening to local stations you have to pull your switch off and wait till they get through. It is impossible to listen to any station while this party is sending. This interference is very strong and comes in all over the dials, continuing from 9 o'clock till 12. It seems to me that a man putting three hundred dollars into a receiving set should be allowed to enjoy it during the evening.

A.—This code interference has to a great extent, been caused by the transmitter at the Charlestown Navy Yard. Their transmitter is now being equipped with a harmonic suppressor according to reports.

HEAVY LOSS IN FIRE IN SOUTH BOSTON PLANT

Heavy damage was caused to the two-story brick building at No. 1 West Third street, South Boston, early today, when two alarms were sounded for a fire in Gershon Brothers' Cooper Company.

Firemen were more than two hours in extinguishing the blaze. Suffocating smoke fumes hampered the fire fighters.

WILL OBSERVE CONSECRATION OF CARDINAL

By JAMES WALSH

Catholics over all the archdiocese of Boston are preparing to observe the twenty fifth anniversary of the consecration of His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell as a bishop.

It is the desire of the cardinal that the whole archdiocese, archbishop, priests and people observe the anniversary which comes on May 19, "by uniting in fervent thanksgiving to God for whatever good these twenty-five years of my stewardship have accomplished."

"I want no gift but that," he said to the Diocesan Council, "and that, needless to say, will be the most consoling tribute of affection which my priests and people could possibly offer me."

It is the desire of the Cardinal that from the first day of May to the 19th of that month, inclusive, a special effort be made to have every member of the diocese offer a mass and Holy Communion to the Blessed Virgin in thanksgiving for the wonderful protection she has given me during all the years of my life."

The Cardinal was ordained June 8, 1884, was consecrated Bishop of Portland May 19, 1901, made assistant at the Pontifical Throne Jan. 4, 1905; named Archbishop of Constantia and coadjutor, with the right to succession to the Archbishop of Boston, Feb. 8, 1906; succeeds to the See of Boston, Aug. 30, 1907, created Cardinal Nov. 27, 1911.

Prince of Wales Must Tackle Big Job

London, Feb. 4.—The Prince of Wales is to go to work. King George has decided that it is time for the Prince to be initiated in the heavy routine work which falls on the lot of an occupant of the Throne. The King has arranged that Wales is to visit at Buckingham Palace every morning to work with him, and to be brought into more intimate touch with the ministers and officers of State.

ABANDON HOPE FOR 15 TRAPPED IN MINE FIRE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 4 (A.P.)—Hope that the fifteen men still unaccounted for following an explosion in the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company No. 4 mine at Horning, near here, were alive, was practically abandoned today by those engaged in the rescue work.

The bodies of three other miners were taken from a working a number of hours after the blast, while three more escaped alive.

Those entrapped in the mine were fighting a fire at a point some two miles back from the entrance when the explosion occurred, and this fire, still raging over a small section, was a handicap to the work of rescue.

A possibility that the burning area will be walled off, if the fifteen men are found to be dead, was said to be in prospect. This move, it was indicated, would be made in an effort to smother the fire in order to reach the bodies.

The explosion which took place just after the day shift of about 700 miners had left the mine, was terrific. A string of mine cars was blown to pieces by force of the blast.

Among those in the mine at the time of the explosion was Howard M. Ernst, general superintendent of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company mines. His fate is unknown.

Cruel Piles Banished by One Treatment

Former Sufferer Praises Scientific Internal Method

Try It Yourself—FREE!

Thirty years of suffering brought Mr. F. X. Falardeau of Minnesota, to the point where he was really desperate, willing to try anything that would relieve him of piles. Then he heard of the Page Internal Tablet Combination Treatment. The idea seemed logical. He tried one treatment. Now read what he says.

"One treatment with your pile remedy rid me of piles after thirty years of suffering. If I could speak so the world would hear me, I would certainly do so. Now I can enjoy life."
F. X. Falardeau, Minn.

"Now I can enjoy life." Could any statement better express Mr. Falardeau's feelings than these five simple words? And one treatment did the work. This is because the Page Internal Tablet Combination Treatment strikes at and corrects the cause, which is internal, far beyond reach of salves or ointments. Yet so pleasant is the method that you will be amazed at results.

All you do is take a few tablets. Then, to relieve your discomfort until their effect is clearly apparent, you use a soothing, healing ointment and a mild but efficient bowel regulator. When the tablets have corrected the cause of your trouble the piles quickly disappear.

Why go on suffering when such a simple, scientific method is available? [illegible] just to [illegible] free to sufferers everywhere. Don't send any money. Mail only the coupon for your Test Package. Do it now.

SAYS BALMWORT IS QUICK--SURE

The following is typical of thousands who have expressed extreme satisfaction at the quick, mild, balmy action of Balmwort tablets. "I was troubled with my kidneys and bladder so bad I could only work a few hours a day. At night was up and down 3 to 4 times, and in the morning could hardly bend over to dress myself. I took one box of Balmwort tablets and never have been troubled since. Also have recommended to others and they have found relief, etc."

"I'm out for facts," he said. "The primary purpose of the expedition is not to reach the North Pole, but to extend geographical knowledge."

A Live Serial of Love and Temptation Right Here In Boston

READ THIS FIRST:

FLOSSIE and MARY ROSE MIDDLETON are two pretty sisters, the daughters of a widowed mother. They work for [illegible]r & Co., big Congress street bond firm.

Mary Rose is secretary to JOHN MANNERS, the sales manager, and is in love with him. But he's engaged to DORIS [illegible]G, an heiress. Because of her feeling for him, Mary Rose repeatedly refuses to marry DR. TOM FITZROY.

For an instant Manners was dismayed. "Very well, Miss Middleton, he said, "when do you leave?"

Flossie, a born vamp, is carrying on a flirtation with the president of the company, HILARY DEXTER, although she's engaged to marry his secretary, SAM JESSUP.

John Manners falls in love with Mary Rose, and tells her he'll always care for her, whether or not he marries Doris. The sisters quarrel, and to get even with Mary Rose, Flossie tells Manners that she is "just stringing him along" and really loves Tom Fitzroy, and intends to marry him. Mary Rose wonders at Manners' sudden coldness toward her.

MRS. DEXTER finds Flossie's vanity case in her husband's desk. When she comes to the office to tell Dexter she's going to divorce him, she mistakes Mary Rose for Flossie and loudly accuses her of trying to steal her husband from her. The other stenographers hear the undeserved tongue lashing Mary Rose receives, and they snub her. Flossie, the real culprit, begs Mary Rose to take the blame, because if Sam finds out that it was really she who was with Dexter, he'll never marry her. Mary Rose, who prays that Sam will marry Flossie and get her away from Dexter, takes Flossie's blame. Then one night Dexter goes too far in his love making, and Flossie finds out how little respect he has for her. She quits her job and disappears the next day. In the morning, Mary Rose, who has spent a sleepless night, goes to Dexter to ask him if he knows anything about Flossie's disappearance.

(Now Go on With the Story)

CHAPTER XLVIII

"Do I know where Flossie is?" Dexter repeated "Why certainly not, Miss Middleton."

He looked up at her, scowling darkly, and Mary Rose saw that he was telling the truth. But he seemed to her so calm, so careless about it. Flossie's sudden dropping out of sight was no matter of life or death to him evidently.

"And to think that only a week or so ago he'd hardly let her out of his sight!" Mary Rose said resentfully to herself. It was seldom that she lost her temper, but she lost it completely now.

"I must say that you take it calmly, Mr. Dexter!" she said in a voice that shook. "Especially as it's your fault she's gone—"

"Mine?" he interrupted "My fault?" He raised his brows, questioningly.

Mary Rose didn't answer for a moment. The sight of him, sitting there, sleek and well dressed and prosperous, in his comfortable chair, enraged her.

While his little love game with Flossie had been at its exciting height, there was nothing he wouldn't do for her! Now, that it was over and she was gone, he was supremely indifferent. Mary Rose quivered all over with righteous fury.

She opened her old leather handbag and took out the special delivery letter he had sent to Flossie yesterday and laid it down on the desk before him.

"Why, you admit yourself in that letter that it's your fault she's quit her job and you promise to behave yourself if only she'll come back!" she faced him with it.

She watched him while he picked up the letter, looked at it and then slowly tore it to little pieces. He laid them in a white heap on his desk before he spoke again.

Mary and Dexter

"You've read this, you say. And I suppose you've known all along about Flossie and me," he said, his eyes fixed on the pile of white scraps. "Let's see, you even brought that ring I gave her back to me, didn't you?"

Federal Trade Commission to Probe Ward Food Co.

PROBE GIGANTIC SMUGGLING

Ottawa, Feb. 4 (A P.).—The Canadian government will name a committee at once to investigate the charges by H. H. Stevens, former minister of trade and commerce and a member of the conservative opposition in the House of Commons, that the Canadian treasury has lost millions of dollars through wholesale smuggling across the United States border.

Mr. Stevens accused the government of failure to take effective action to remedy these conditions. It was estimated, he said, that $30,000,000 had been diverted from the exchequer with the connivance of Canadian customs officials.

SOLON AND WIFE BEST DANCERS

Representative and Mrs. Garfano Get Waltz Award; New Hampshire Fiddler Wins

The second old-time dance conducted by the Boston Evening American filled the Strand Ballroom to capacity and afforded all who attended the time of their lives.

Llewellyn Powers, 66-year-old painter of Brookline, N. H., swept the old timers' fiddling contest from a field of twelve entries with the "Devil's Dream," played on a genuine Stradivarius violin, dated 1721 and valued at $20,000. Powers has had the instrument for twenty years having purchased it from his son for $65.

He learned to play the 'cello at the age of eight and the following year took up study of the violin and is still "scratching them out with the best," as he expressed it. He received a large silver loving cup.

The prize waltz contest saw an entry list of 200, which was dwindled down by gradual elimination

Mr. and Mrs. Tony A. Garfano captured first prize, each receiving a silver loving cup. Garfano is a member of the State Legislature from the Lynn and Saugus district Recently the couple won a waltz contest at Crescent Gardens, Revere.

Second prize was awarded to Manuel Leo of No. 50 Bellingham avenue, Beachmont, and Mrs. May Guinzall of No. 700 Columbia road, Dorchester.

Rosalie Hawley, the pretty girl waltzer who sent out an appeal for partners last week, picked out a winner in Archie A. Houle of Manchester, N. H., now employed at the Huntington Club. Rosalie is formerly of Rockport. She made a declaration that she would pick a winner. She received a silver bon bon dish and Houle a silver cigarette case.

DEMAND "SECRET DATA" IN MELLON FIRM CASE

Washington, Feb. 4 (I.N.S.)—Paving the way for a Senatorial investigation of the Mellon-owned Aluminum Company of America, the Senate Judiciary Committee today adopted a resolution calling on the Federal Trade Commission to produce all evidence in its possession relating to the Aluminum Company's alleged violation of an anti-trust decree. The committee, however, failed to vote on the report submitted by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, who criticised the Department of Justice for "undue delay" in bringing action against the Aluminum Company.

Patronesses

Miss Casimir R. Devine and Miss Evelyn L. Mansfield, above, are two of the patronesses of the formal supper dance of the Proparvulis Club to be held at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, Tuesday evening, Feb. 9. Among the prominent women who will attend will be Lady Winifrede Elwes and two daughters and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, wife of the Governor.

COUNTESS SEEN AS MENACE

Washington, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Secretary Kellogg told the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia today that evidence led him to believe the entry of Countess Catherine Karolyi into the United States would be prejudicial to the interests of the nation.

He made this reply, through government attorneys, to a suit filed by the Countess' attorneys, who sought to force him to permit her entry after the recent decision to refuse to vise her passport at Paris.

The secretary said he instructed the American Consul General at Paris to refuse a visa and that the Countess is subject to exclusion under the passport control act of May 22, 1922, a proclamation by the President of August 8, 1918, and an executive order of January 12, 1925. In addition, he said, he is given discretion under the law to determine what persons shall be excluded.

LEGALITY OF MERGER ASSAILED

General Investigation of Big Combine Expected to Continue Several Months

Washington, Feb. 4 (A.P.)—A special investigation has been ordered by the Federal Trade Commission into the Ward Food Products Corporation, recently organized to deal in materials used by the baking industry.

The investigation will be conducted by the legal department of the commission, and will be apart from the economic investigation of the entire baking industry, which has been in progress for several months as directed by a Senate resolution. The general investigation will not be completed for several months and heretofore it had been the general view in commission circles that it would embrace the newly-formed Ward company.

As ordered, the new investigation is distinct from one proposed in the Senate yesterday by Senator La Follette, who asked that a Senate committee investigate all companies directly or indirectly controlled by William B. Ward, who with his associates, organized the Food Products Corporation.

Replying to that move, Mr. Ward wired Senator LaFollette that he would welcome scrutiny of the project.

QUEEN'S COUNSEL

REGISTERED UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE

by Marie

Queen of Roumania

I CAN'T SPELL!!!

YES, alas, this is true, absurd as it sounds. I cannot spell! There is something lacking in my brain, or is it my eye? But really and truly, although I am fifty, I have never learned, never can learn, not to make appalling mistakes when I write.

And what is worse, I have passed on this weakness to most of my children! My eldest daughter alone, Elisabeta, Queen of Greece, spells with a reasonable degree of facility.

Of course, it is unpardonable for a Queen to make such errors, but there it is, a sad fact.

Now WHY do I make mistakes?

I have found several explanations and one is that, being of an imaginative disposition, it is actually dull to write a word the same way every day. The "ea" and the "ee," for instance, and the "ance" and "ence" at the end of a word. Or "ector" or "actor," "emperer" or "emperor." It is pronounced alike. And the "erys" and "arys," the "ces-es" and the "ses-es" and all the rest of it.

Really, I have no patience, and words take on such funny expressions when you write them a little differently each day. It is like giving them new clothes, or a holiday, or letting them kick over the traces once in a while.

But the double letters are by far the worst. I never can remember which words take double letters. On the days when I am thoughtful, concentrated, reasonable, just a little austere, then all my words have single "l's" and "p's" and "f's."

On the days when I feel dashing, generous, go-ahead, then I am profuce (or is it spelled with an "s"?) with double letters, and "defence," "pity," "money," "enemy," "ominous," "capital," etc., all have double letters, and you have no idea how jolly and good-humored they look. They actually seem grateful to me for giving them a nice little change!

But for all that—and this especially for good little children: Please try and spell correctly because there ARE moments when one feels awfully ashamed when one can't!

PINCHOT IN NEW BID FOR PEACE

Philadelphia, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Interest in the anthracite strike situation today turned to a scheduled conference here between Governor Pinchot and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America.

"Somebody has got to get action in the strike," the Governor said in Harrisburg, in announcing that he would see Mr. Lewis in an effort to chart a future course of action that would have for its purpose "the return of the miners to work as soon as it is humanly possible."

The Governor has not disclosed what he has in mind, and Mr. Lewis declined to comment in advance of the conference.

Meantime legislative moves are being made in Washington and Harrisburg to relieve the situation

FIND WIFE DEAD IN FURNACE

Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Burned almost beyond recognition, the body of Mrs. George Solomon, forty-six years old and the mother of nine children, was found wedged in the furnace door at her home here. Her two oldest sons asked police to take into custody their seventy-three-year-old father.

Solomon at first maintained that his wife was away visiting friends, but finally asserted that she had been burned in adjusting the drafts.

No formal charges have been placed against him, but police plan to subject him to a lengthy interrogation today.

Physicians said the mother died of asphyxiation from the furnace fumes. The face and shoulders were charred.

The children told police the father had answered their inquiries regarding their mother's absence by telling them she was at a friend's home.

SAVE NAVAL SHRINE OF NATION

Boston Evening American Opens Columns for "Save Ironsides" Contributions

Save "Old Ironsides!"

Do you wish to help preserve this wonderful old frigate, now rotting at a pier in Boston Navy Yard?

Think of it, patriots—this fine old ship, which played such a valiant part in the early history of this wonderful country is actually rotting away. Yes, rotting away in the same city from which she so proudly sailed in the olden days to make glorious history for the United States'

Well, YOU can prevent the destruction of this grand old frigate. The Boston Evening American today throws open its columns to Uncle Sam for the purpose of obtaining additional funds with which to preserve "Old Ironsides." If you can spare $100 from your bankroll Uncle Sam would like to have you contribute to that extent but he will be equally grateful if you send only 50 cents or a dollar. Every little bit will help.

All contributions will be publicly acknodged in the columns of the Boston Evening American. A contribution can be made in the name of some loved departed relative or friend, as a memorial, and so acknowledged by this newspaper. All contributions should be addressed to "Old Ironsides Fund," Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, Mass.

The money received by the Boston Evening American will be turned over to Rear Admiral Phillip Andrews of the Boston Navy Yard at Charlestown. The Navy is raising funds for the purpose of restoring the Constitution, otherwise known as "Old Ironsides." It is estimated that $500,000 will be necessary. A substantial portion of that sum has been raised, much of it through the assistance of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

The public school programs as arranged by Superintendent Jeremiah E. Burke and James R. Flanagan, representing Boston Lodge of Elks, will be carried out. Equally interesting ones will be followed in the 38 Catholic schools of the Boston archdiocese.

STORM HALTS PLANS

Both Scotchman and Latzo Ready to Fight, but the Weather Interferes

By JACK CONWAY.

THE worst blizzard of the year forced Matchmaker Tommy Goodwin of the Suffolk A. A. to postpone the boxing show of that organization which was to be held in Mechanics Building tonight, until tomorrow evening.

Goodwin announced that there were [illegible] of [illegible] followers who would be unable to make any progress in battling the 60-mile an hour gale that is sweeping the Atlantic Coast.

Jack Conway

Although all the boxers were on hand and ready to clash, there was nothing [illegible] either [illegible] feature bout boxers, Tommy Milligan of Scotland and Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa. Both were on hand early and reported to the local gymnasiums for a light workout, being unable to take to the road.

The gallant [illegible] Scotsman was [illegible] bed to quarrel with Walker [illegible] for the direction of Tex Rickard [illegible] New York last month. The noble New York Boxing Commission then stepped into the picture and blotted out the tussle on the ground that Walker had not sufficiently recovered from a toe operation.

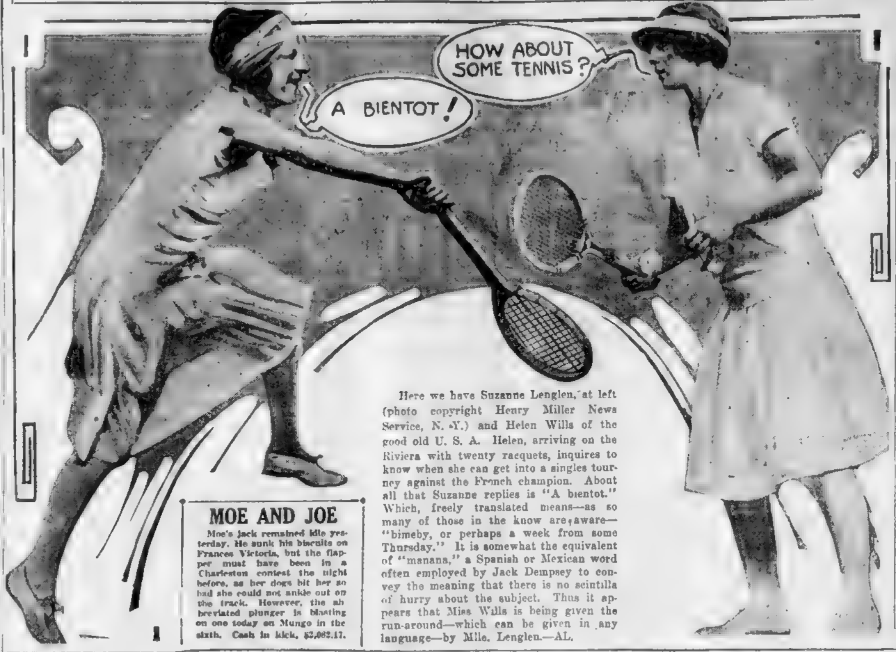
Walker and Milligan had previously been tentatively matched to box for a charity show in New York. Jack Kearns, Walker's pilot, then [illegible] for a fabulous purse for Walker's services and the match ran for Sweeney. This is the real reason why the New York boxing intellectuals later refused to permit Walker to box Milligan for Rickard.

If the Scotsman can bowl over some of the best of the American welterweight contenders he will be all set to meet Walker in a big money shot when the outdoor season opens.

BILLY Ames, who manages Milligan, apparently does not believe in picking soft ones for his protege, as Latzo is rated as one of the best of our brave welterweights. He has been particularly successful in Boston rings, where he has walloped out victories over Paul Doyle, George Ward and Billy Wells.

Latzo is a better socker than Milligan, but is not as fast or as good a boxer as the dashing invader. This is probably why the speculative element is backing Milligan to win.

HAS THE RUN-AROUND IDEA INVADED TENNIS?



HOW ABOUT SOME TENNIS?
A BIENTOT!

Here we have Suzanne Lenglen, at left (photo copyright Henry Miller News Service, N. Y.) and Helen Wills of the good old U. S. A. Helen, arriving on the Riviera with twenty racquets, inquires to know when she can get into a singles tourney against the French champion. About all that Suzanne replies is "A bientot." Which, freely translated means—as so many of those in the know are aware—"bimeby, or perhaps a week from some Thursday." It is somewhat the equivalent of "manana," a Spanish or Mexican word often employed by Jack Dempsey to convey the meaning that there is no scintilla of hurry about the subject. Thus it appears that Miss Wills is being given the run-around—which can be given in any language—by Mlle. Lenglen.—AL.

MOE AND JOE

Moe's jack remained idle yesterday. He sunk his biscuits on Frances Victoria, but the flapper must have been in a Charleston contest the night before, as her dogs bit her so bad she could not ankle out on the track. However, the abbreviated plunger is blasting on one today on Mungo in the sixth. Cash in kick, $2,082.17.

Says Jack Has Signed for Labor Day Go

Los Angeles, Feb. 4.—Jack Dempsey has agreed and signed in his own handwriting to defend his title of heavyweight champion of the world in Los Angeles, Labor Day, against Harry Wills, Jack Doyle, Los Angeles promoter, representing a syndicate of real estate and business men, declared today.

"Dempsey has agreed to fight Wills here, and if the syndicate of Los Angeles men put up the money Dempsey asks, there is nothing to stop the bout," Doyle declared.

It was said the champion had asked $500,000 cash in advance and $250,000 additional the day he faces the Brown Panther.

Suggs Prepares to Tackle Herman

Boston ring followers will have another look at "Chick" Suggs of New Bedford Monday night, when he steps into the ring to face Babe Herman of California in the feature tussle of ten rounds at the Commercial A. C. show in Mechanics Building.

Besides that main setto, Charlie Donovan of South Boston will grace the centre of the ring with Joe Hartnett of Halifax. This is the Maritime champion's first start in Boston, and should he live up to expectations the fans will get a real thrill.

The other bouts will be Nick Quagerelli, Herman's sparring partner, meeting Henry Ford in a six-rounder, while Young Al Delmont, Jr., of the North End meets Johnny Kid Adams of Providence.

Not So Bad!

San Diego, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—What Horsemen said was a record price in place was paid at the Tijuana racetrack yesterday when Broomflax, a seven-year-old gelding, ran second in the last race. Each $2 mutuel ticket to place paid $557.60, while each $2 show ticket paid $86.20. If Broomflax had won his "straight" price would have been only $162.80, because longshot players bought tickets on him to win but neglected to play him to place or show.

FOOTBALL STAR ACCUSED BY GIRL

Columbia, Mo., Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Suspension of Harry R. (Pete) Jackson, star quarterback of the University of Missouri football team, as the result of an alleged liquor party at a boarding house attended by several co-eds, today has developed two versions of the affair.

Denial was made by Jackson that he had insulted a girl as stated by Dean Heckel.

Two co-eds and a man student were suspended along with Jackson.

Dean Heckel said he believed the affair would aid in stamping out liquor at the university. He declared Missouri was no worse than any other institution.

"In fact, drinking is rapidly on the decline here and we hope to stamp it out entirely," he said.

$8,000,000 Sport Palace for Chi

Chicago Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Chicago has a sports clearing house on the way, it was announced today, where managers and promoters will co-operate in matching ring talent not only for Chicago, but for the entire country. A number of managers, including one from California, already have leased space at the headquarters.

The proposal to establish the clearing house was coincident with the announcement of Paddy Harmon's building plans, which will provide an $8,000,000 sports structure where bouts will be held with other sport events.

Tilden "Believes in Amateur Sport"

New York, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—William T. Tilden, national tennis champion, in a letter to the Herald-Tribune, states that an interview appearing in this week's Harvard Crimson rather inaccurately presented his real views as to amateur and professional sports.

The Crimson interviewer quoted Tilden as saying college football is a professional sport and the players might as well be paid for their efforts. In his letter to the Herald-Tribune the net champion says what he really said was:

"I saw no reason for all the yell about amateur and professional sports; that the line of demarcation between professionalism and commercialism was primarily one of whether the individual was paid or not, and that under the present system it seemed to me that since organizations were getting the return on sport the players might as well be paid too.

"I remember (which doubtless the interviewer forgot) that I [illegible] not approve of professional sport in theory, but that open professionalism is superior to [illegible] amateurism if it evades the law. Strange though it may seem, I am a great believer in amateur sport."

Mrs. Mallory Out of Tourney

New York, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., seventh national ranking star, sprang an astonishing upset today when she conquered Mrs. Molla Mallory, seven times former national champion, 6—3, 3—6, 8—6, in the semi-finals of the Heights Casino tournament.

Miss Bayard's victory was due largely to her superior service and a versatile attack that upset her veteran rival's hard-driving game.

Mrs. Mallory made a gallant fight against great [illegible] the last two games [illegible] only [illegible].

It was the first setback Mrs. Mallory has sustained at indoor play in several seasons.

SUZANNE WINS EASIER THAN HELEN DID

Nice, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Helen Wills, American champion, and Miss Emily Bennett of England, came through the first round of the women's doubles in the Nice tournament today, defeating Eileen Ilovaisky and Mrs. Emmett 6—1, 6—1, 6—0.

Nice, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—Suzanne Lenglen defeated Mrs. C. F. Aeschlimann, formerly Miss Leslie Bancroft of Boston, in the singles of the Nice tournament today, 6—0, 6—0.

Nice, Feb. 4 (I.N.S.).—Mlle. Lenglen showed the best of her game today when she defeated Mrs. Aeschlimann. Suzanne was playing in her flashiest style and tore through the two love sets with little apparent exertion.

When Helen Wills played Mrs. Aeschlimann on Jan. 22 she succeeded in defeating her only by a score of 6—2, 6—2. Suzanne today won three love games and Mrs. Aeschlimann succeeded in carrying only one game to deuce. Mrs. Aeschlimann carried seven games to deuce against Miss Wills.

Suzanne, well aware her showing today would be used as the basis of a comparison with the game of the California girl, was at her best and passed up no opportunities.

Tennis Moguls Meet to Arrange Match

Paris, Feb. 4 (A.P.).—"The French Lawn Tennis Federation alone can and ought to arrange a match between Helen Wills, the American champion, and Suzanne Lenglen," says L'Auto, France's leading sporting journal, today.

"That's the only way out of the present unsatisfactory state of affairs, for which neither player is in any way responsible. It is the diversity of interests at stake—hotels and makers of balls—the inevitable case with two players of such financial drawing power, which alone has delayed a meeting between them."

Nice, Feb. 4 (I.N.S.).—Helen Wills is not endangering her amateur status by her newspaper writing, according to assurances she received today in a cablegram from President Mersereau of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

President Mersereau's cable stated that Miss Wills has "nothing to worry about" and wished her luck in her Riviera competitions. The odds in favor if Miss Wills and Mlle. Lenglen meeting in the Carlton tournament at Annes next week were better today.

Miss Wills announced that she expects to enter the Carlton singles.

Suzanne has stated that she also intends to enter these singles, but just how much this statement means no one can say.

MILLROSE MEET ON TONIGHT

Houben Will Face Stiffest Opposition in New York Sprints; 600 Is Feature

By STED CHANDLER.

Tonight's the night again, track fans. It's too bad all of Boston's enthusiasts are unable to take advantage of both ends of the double feature on the board this week, with the Millrose games in New York tonight and the B. A. A. at the Arena Saturday. The [illegible] be great events.

Madison Square Garden will see its first big track [illegible] when the starter's gun goes off at 8 o'clock this evening. An almost unprecedented array of talent will be on hand to entertain the spectators.

The Millrose meet is interesting from both a competitive and an international angle. All of the entrants are of high calibre and are evenly matched. All of the foreigners are expected to appear. Thirty [illegible] scratch events will vie for the limelight.

Adrian Paulen, who has been pulling a Phil Sheridan across the Atlantic, disembarked from the storm-beaten Olympic early [illegible] and is faced with the [illegible] task of regaining his [illegible] hours. [illegible] have been [illegible] but being a foreigner he [illegible] compelled to [illegible] So his first attempt at indoor running will be made under severe handicap.

The result of his efforts will be highly interesting to watch but in no way can be construed as a real test of his abilities.

The international relay team, composed of Paulen, Hoff, Houben and Christie of Canada, should add color to the meet.

In mentioning the sprints, the best way in which to describe their class is to reel off a list of entries. Look them over: Houben, Hussey, Murchison, Leconey, Miller, Mittelsdorf, McDonald, Chaffee, M[illegible], Glendenning, Edgar, Burns, Tedd Farrell, Shore, Rawlings [illegible] Delehanty. The best this kind [illegible] put forth, with Hubert Healer making a determined effort at a comeback after his Boston disaster.

The 600-yard special will be a decisive affair and should settle a troublesome question in the minds of track followers—just who is the best middle-distance man in this field?

Paulen will be in there although granted the severe handicap of a sea storm hangover. Charley Hoff will be there too. Can either of these men defeat Alan Helffrich, rated America's best? Will Helffrich come back after his recent setbacks at the hands of Gibson and Leness? Where to figure young Pinkie Sober, who has beaten both Gibson and Helffrich? It's quite a problem.

Y. M. H. A. AND FILENE'S TO HOLD AMATEUR SHOWS

The Boston Young Men's Hebrew Association is staging a banner amateur boxing tournament at their headquarters, Seaver street, Roxbury.

Physical Director Sam Smith has numerous amateur mitt wielders from all sections of Greater Boston appearing in the five different classes.

Fans who thrive on the simon pure boxing matches will see action in the 118, 126, 13[illegible], 147 and 160 pound divisions. This is the second monthly show of the B. Y. M. H. A. and should prove far superior to their former tournament.

While this is going on the Filene's Co-operative Association, composed of men working in the Filene's store, will enjoy a dinner and boxing exhibition of many local scrappers.

MALCEWICZ AND LUNDEN BATTLE TONIGHT

By RINGSIDE

Alex Lunden, Swedish sensation and one of the most popular grapplers to show his wares in Boston, [illegible] Joe Malcewicz, referred to as the [illegible] champion, at the Grand Opera House in the main bout on the Bowser wrestling card tonight.

This is the first of an elimination series put into vogue by Matchmaker Paul Bowser, who is employing such tactics to force Joe Stecher or Strangler Lewis into a match with the winner.

There is little to choose between the men tonight. Both have tumbled the best men in their division, with the exception of Lewis and Stecher, and Bowser, by offering a handsome $1,[illegible] hopes to give [illegible] matmen enough incentive to agree to such a match.

The semi-final bout on the card will bring a new grappler in the [illegible] Big Bill Beth, northwestern lumber jack, is wrestling Stanley Stastak, Polish Lion.

Scholastic Track Season Opens Officially Today

By EDDIE DONDERO

THE official opening of the competitive track season for Boston high schools comes today with Commerce, Latin and Mechanic Arts tossing a galaxy of top-notch [illegible] Armory saucer. This three-cornered affair [illegible] account of their senior, intermediate and junior [illegible].

Hyde Park and Brighton [illegible] in a dual meet tomorrow afternoon [illegible] the first of its kind this season. Trade School [illegible] several veteran [illegible] on deck faces East Boston in another board track classic tomorrow.

The [illegible] schools were rather late in getting their Winter sport [illegible] under way. The East Armory has been the scene of a group of interclass track [illegible] which revealed a host of doubtful candidates. Fred O'Brien, athletic director of Boston [illegible] declared that the menu from now on calls for plenty of action.

Coach "Ike" Flemming, at Commerce High, has but a handful of dependables. Among them are Jack Garfe, a sprinter, and Horwitz, a 6[illegible]-yard performer.

The season is a wee bit young yet and Master Flemming may have a pat hand before the final gun barks.

Mechanics is without a gymnasium to practice in and Coach Dunn is also handicapped in several other ways.

TOM SCANLON has his share of luminaries at Brighton and some flashy performances should be turned in against their Hyde Park [illegible] number of the [illegible] cog in the [illegible] Johnny O'Hare, Mc[illegible] Callahan are ex[illegible] in the running events.

SPORT EDITORIAL

ONCE in the dear dead days beyond recall—

Once, long ago, John L. Sullivan ranted up and down the country, swinging his bulky fists and declaring that he could whip any blank blankety blank in the whole world.

Once the newspapers printed stories of the barroom accomplishments of Ping Bodie and the escapades of Bugs Raymond.

Once the mention of Rube Waddell's name brought to mind those stories of frenzied frivolity when nights were turned to day and gayety prevailed in the midst of business.

Once athletes were "sports" as well, and the checkered vest, the derby hat and the cauliflower ear were marks of distinction and public notice.

Now these athletic figures who hold the public eye have changed. List to the siren voice of the press agent:

Ivan Poddubny reads Nietzche and Tolstoi. Gene Tunney quotes Shakespeare by the ream; plays golf with millionaires and has the manner of a drawing-room favorite.

Truly times have changed and athletes with them. It's a good thing for athletics. The world of sport is more wholesome today than in those other years when a Sullivan ranged the country and a Waddell entertained his friends in each passing barroom.—FORD C. FRICK.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER R. HORTON

Throughout the back swing for the medium upright swing the right arm keeps rather snugly in to the side—not tightly there, however—so that at the top as shown in the sketch the right arm is nearer to the side than is the case with the full upright swing. The difference between the medium and the full upright is merely the difference between stopping at the three quarters position and taking that final hitch that occurs in the full upright to let the club go on around to the maximum back swing. Men whose muscles no longer have the resiliency of youthful strength and players who have accumulated extra pounds and [illegible] around the middle cannot accomplish this final hitch at the top of the swing and keep poised, hence this medium upright swing fits them much better. It puts ease and grace into an effort that will be awkward and difficult when the full upright swing is attempted.

FAGLES VS. TERRIERS IN WINDSOR CUP SERIES

By BILL GRIMES

The first game of the Winsor Cup series will be played this evening between Boston College and Boston University at the Boston Arena. A complete schedule of Winsor Cup games has been arranged by Manager George V. Brown. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology will be the third contender.

The rivalry between Boston College and Boston University is very keen in hockey. They played two fierce games last season. Boston University took the first game and the boys from University Heights captured the second.

DO MODERN MEN SHIRK MARRIAGE?

Beatrice Fairfax Says They Often Long for a Home

By Beatrice Fairfax

THE [illegible] of marriage is of supreme [illegible] it's generally [illegible] man beings [illegible] ant event of life.

There's been [illegible] to the effect that modern men [illegible] women postpone marriage and in many instances do not marry at [illegible]

Seek Careers

Education takes up more years of a girl's life than it used to and [illegible] often leads to deferred marriage. Also, office work, the professions, arts and various means by which girls earn a livelihood are absorbing to them and [illegible] career rather than matrimony.

[illegible] girls no longer marry merely for a home because any young business woman, singly or with another girl, [illegible] have her own little housekeeping apartment.

A secret told me by my friend Lou—the name is assumed—illustrates another reason why some attractive girls don't marry. Lou is [illegible] But at twenty-six she's not engaged.

"[illegible] marry the best man living," Lou often asserted smilingly when teased about this fact. "Why should I? With a good job and my independence why should I struggle along as the wife of a small or [illegible] salaried man? And if one goes on working after marriage what's the use of marrying?" [illegible] you—I know when I'm well off."

But the other day Lou [illegible] real reason she hadn't married.

"No one desirable ever asked me to marry," she confessed. "I adore the very thought of marriage and a home and kiddies of my own. I believe I'd marry almost any man I could respect who [illegible] his wife."

"Almost eve[illegible] time or another [illegible] that he's not in a [illegible] doesn't wish to marry. The fact is, most young men [illegible] meet nowadays are not marrying men."

Is there a foundation of fact in this assertion that modern men shirk marriage?

Conditions Favorable.

Modern living conditions are in every way favorable to bachelors as well as bachelor girls. Machinery has so simplified housework that young men can and do enjoy the comfort and privacy of home in their own bachelor apartments, hiring housekeeping service by the hour.

Under these circumstances a bachelor's life is delightfully easy and independent. He has few responsibilities and his time is his own. But these advantages are likely sooner or later to pall in comparison with the added joys and responsibilities of marriage.

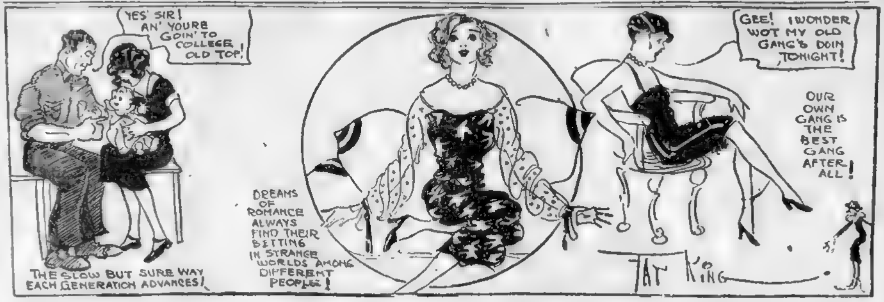
FAY KING RAISES A VERY ETERNAL QUESTION



YES' SIR! AN' YOURE GOIN' TO COLLEGE OLD TOP!
THE SLOW BUT SURE WAY EACH GENERATION ADVANCES!
DREAMS OF ROMANCE ALWAYS FIND THEIR SETTING IN STRANGE WORLDS AMONG DIFFERENT PEOPLE!
GEE! I WONDER WOT MY OLD GANG'S DOIN TONIGHT!
OUR OWN GANG IS THE BEST GANG AFTER ALL!
FAY KING

By Fay King.

"CAN two people from vastly different walks of life marry and live happily ever after?"

Very, very few it seems!

The records of shattered romance show us that poor girls whose beauty brought them marriage with rich or [illegible] in running away from it all! [illegible] marry chauffeurs, clerks and handsome policemen and how has it ended?

Young folks are always peopling their day dreams of romance with all that is a contrast to their own surroundings.

The rich and pampered society miss [illegible] longs to dedicate her life and find [illegible] the ideal and inspiration of some genius, and to find happiness in struggle! She dreams of a cottage for two!

The poor girl, in turn, dreams of a romance that will lift her suddenly from what seems to her a sordid, hampered existence into a world of pleasure and beauty and riches and [illegible]

For some these dreams have come [illegible]

The poor girl who is sudden[illegible] lifted into the world of society is apt to become as bored after a time as the society girl who finds herself growing weary of what once all seemed so wonderful!

We are all at our best when we are in our own surroundings.

The mingling of all people can be congenial and pleasant, but each likes to go back to his own little world!

The working man wouldn't change his contented ways for all the frills and failings of fashionable life!

Their life seems as impossible to him as perhaps his seems to them!

True happiness in marriage is where both belong to the same world, and understand each other's ways perfectly! Together they climb and plan for their children's progress and each generation moves forward!

The Making of a Husband, Ann Lisle's Clever Serial

By Ann Lisle

"I AM thinking of by ap[illegible]ointment with Mrs. [illegible] Mr. Perry [illegible] four [illegible] the way from Dreamwood for nothing."

So it means that much!" I gasped mentally. "That much!"

But what I said aloud was:

"Then I shall telephone Mrs. Cruikshank and ask if Arlette's bed was slept in. We've got to have something definite to work on at once. You've let enough time go by without doing anything to locate the poor little thing."

"I had to get Lingard off to town this morning," said Mr. Perry defensively, but without any sign of irritation at my cross and reproachful tone. "I got a car and sent him in with one of the boys from the lower village. I took it for granted that Arlette was with May. But when she didn't show up for lunch, and Mrs. Cruikshank began telling how she wouldn't fail me like this and go gallivanting off leaving me to fend for myself, I began to think maybe she had been scolding Arlette and that the child wouldn't [illegible]ome home unless I fetched her.

That's why I'm here. Now I'll just wait to telephone Mrs. C., since you insist, and then I must run along and look out for Virginia—for Mrs. Dalton."

It didn't add any to my pleasure with the general scheme of things to know that it was of Jeanie Mr. Perry was thinking at a moment like this when every energy and thought should be centered on little affairs Arlette. But things didn't look quite so black when Mr. Perry turned from the telephone with the announcement that Arlette had slept in her little white bed at the Hedgerow Lodge the night before, and that Mrs. Cruikshank thought there was a lot of silly to-do about the child who had probably gone off snow-shoeing or something like that.

So Nicholas Perry went home, with the assurance that May would probably come along presently leading Arlette by the ear, and that he was sorry he had prodded the hornets' nest and set a lot of ideas buzzing about my ears.

"If they were only—ideas!" I said more to myself than to him.

But I had plenty of "ideas" [illegible] most of them disturbing [illegible] next hour. May did not come back. I tried to reach Zeke Schmidt at the station, but was told that it was his afternoon off. I called Jim's office, disregarding the fact that he had gone off in a rage, leaving me no greeting or explanation save the word May had delivered. Jim was not in his office, and I noticed how peculiar the intonation in the operator's voice was as she gave me this information.

"Do you know where I can reach him?" I asked.

"He went away with some lady," she giggled.

There was a buzz on the wire and a moment late Jim's efficient secretary was saying suavely:

"I don't think Mr Harrison will be back at the office this afternoon, Mrs. Harrison. He had to go out on a matter of business—with a client. I think he had a banquet or dinner or something and won't be reachable until he gets home this evening. But if you want to leave word, I'll have him call you."

"N[illegible] thank you," I said.

My heart was cold as I spoke.

As I hung up the receiver it seemed as if I had tempted fate once too often and had met with my nemesis. In a spasm of self-reproach, I asked myself:

"Why didn't you tell Jim last night that his love is enough for you? You didn't give him the assurance he asked for because you were not certain of your own heart. And now how do you like it when you find that he has gone off—gallivanting with someone else? It serves you right. You deserve it. But that doesn't make it any easier."

to [illegible]fiscate property where alcohol is concerned.

OBJECTION to the "body rub" is based on the fact that thirsty men drink the "rub." Some do worse. In one great steel manufacturing city a local rule forbids selling alcohol made into solid cakes for burning as in alcohol lamps. It was discovered that some men ate those cakes. Changing old habits is slow work.

KING GEORGE and Queen Mary opened Parliament sitting in blazing glory in the House of Lords with peers and peeresses around them. Correspondents describe the display of diamonds and pearls as unusually brilliant. The court is in mourning for Queen Alexandra, mother of King George, and black dresses made the diamonds seem more brilliant. Queen Mary wore "a huge stomacher of diamonds, pearl and diamond collar and a diamond crown of Maltese crosses made of enormous diamonds." Princesses and peeresses all did their best.

DIAMONDS that the Romanoffs, cousins of British royalty, used to wear are now sold by the Bolsheviki, and the money used to buy American plows for Russian peasants. But this doesn't worry King George. Wiser than the Czars, British royalty follows where the people lead, in a country where the right to think, say and write what you please is still taken seriously. That makes it a safe country, even for kings and their diamonds.

FAILURE OF ANOTHER effort to end the coal strike brings coal so much nearer to control by the government. Coal under ground is owned by individuals, only through public consent. Everything that represents absolute public necessity, air, water, coal, railroads, must naturally be subject to public control. Mine owners are said by union leaders to be forcing a practical lockout; the unions brought trouble on themselves in the beginning by defiant refusal of arbitration. Unions and owners are working here as they have done in England toward government control of mines. It will come in England before long. It will come here eventually. The people will not forever consent to shiver, while "capital and labor" fight about the terms on which the people may have heat.

RAMBLING 'ROUND

WINTER WEATHER absorbs all the moisture that feeds your hands. A lovely cream keeps them soft and white as flower petals. For rough, chapped hands, too. Used with a lotion, the results are marvelous.

SPEAKING OF HANDS, don't disfigure them with ill-kept, rough nails. I know the most wonderful manicurist. I haunt her once a week. Only 50c; used to be with a famous beauty shop; "now in for herself." Makes your nails things of beauty and a joy to behold. No tips; never a hang-nail!

GREENWICH VILLAGE has come to Boston in a little Bohemian restaurant, near Park Square. Fairly shouts of New York! The place to take your out-of-town friends to lunch or sup. 3-course luncheon, beautifully served, only 75c. Smocks, candlelight. Fags, too. And, oh such cooking!

DON'T DENY YOURSELF a healthy scalp and beautiful hair. Famous scalp treatment prevents baldness, dandruff, clears up scalp troubles. A real little wonder worker. Used faithfully will grow hair on bare spots. 59c a whopping big bottle.

I HAVE FALLEN IN LOVE with a little end table that's a special at certain February sale. Mahogany finished; graceful design, only $2.95. Lower shelf, too. Turned legs. A real value within the reach of everyone.

A REALLY FLATTERING ROUGE has been discovered! One that seems to lie beneath the skin, not on it. Unaffected by perspiration. Lends lovely glow to your face. Vivid, medium and natural orange tints; suits your moods and frocks. You'll like the youthful blush it brings.

MARTHA LEE AND I spend all our spare hours making lampshades! And such values as we've found! Frames for 91c, formerly all the way up to $3.50. All sizes and shapes, even to big floor lamp frames.

ACROSS THE SEA came some beautiful gold baskets for panels for your lampshade. Gold lace with 14 little rosebuds. Only $1.35. Unusual, exceptionally beautiful. Stamps your lamp as "different."

BE UNIQUE. Use for your covering, gorgeous Paisley gold tissue cloth. Also an importation. When light shines through, it glows iridescently. Absolutely the latest for lamps.

AMBER AND CRYSTAL beads vari-colored make the newest fringes. $2.75 a yard—I've seen the same thing in other shops $5 and $6 a yard. Colors to harmonize with your room or lamp. Shimmering mass of beauty when lamp is lighted.

DON'T YOU LOVE brocaded velvet in georgette for panels? I know a shop where you can get enough for two big panels for $2.00. $14.50 a yard elsewhere.

FOR THE LITTLER LAMPS, black silhouettes, georgette covered, are effective. 59c for a big package of all shapes and sizes.

A SPANDY NEW WAY of removing face creams! Silk tissue treated with cold cream; removes all dirt, grime and germ-laden accumulations. Corrects oiliness. Comes in flat handkerchief box to fit your under-arm bag. Only 25c—and a godsend at home or for a quick clean-up en route.

Pointers and Recipes From Martha Lee's Pen

Exchange Day

GREETINGS, everybody!

Recipes have been flocking in from East to West this past week and it has been hard to choose among them. However, I know you'll find each of the three I have for you today equally delicious.

The first comes from Mrs. B. P., 11 Ringgold street, Haverhill, Mass., and is for SCALLOPED OYSTERS AND SPAGHETTI.

Cook 6 or 7 ounces of spaghetti in salted boiling water 20 minutes, drain and then add the following: Thoroughly grease the sides and bottom of a casserole, add a layer of spaghetti, oysters, dots of butter and pepper, then another layer of spaghetti; add a small amount of milk and bake slowly an hour or a little less, depending on the heat of the oven. A pint of oysters is about right for this amount of spaghetti, but it is a recipe where one can use more of one and less of the other depending on one's likes and dislikes. The richer the milk and the more butter you use will make a vast difference in the flavor of the finished product. We prefer this to scalloped oysters with crackers.

The second recipe is from Mrs. R. L. T., Fort William, Maine, some delicious oatmeal pancakes that are especially acceptable these snappy days. I find them good not only with maple syrup but with pineapple marmalade and a new thin ginger marmalade of which I am very fond:

OATMEAL PANCAKES.

1 cup cold cooked oatmeal.
2-3 cup flour or cornmeal, sifted with
3 teaspoons baking powder.
Enough milk to make thin batter.
2 well beaten eggs.

Mix in order given—very good.

From Mrs. M. M., 3079 North Main street, Fall River, comes something quite "different"—corned beef masquerading as the more expensive tongue:

BREADED TONGUE AND TOMATO SAUCE.

6 slices cooked corned beef.
½ can tomatoes.
1 slice of onion.
Little bay leaf.
1-3 cup cracker crumbs.
3 tablespoons flour.
1 egg.
3 tablespoons cooking oil.
Salt and pepper.

Dip beef in crumbs, egg, and in crumbs again and fry in cooking oil. Cook tomatoes, onion and bay leaf 15 minutes, strain and add the cooking oil and flour cooked together. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Place the meat on dish and pour sauce over all.

Mrs. R. M. C., of Beach street, Wollaston, sends an excellent table of sauces and relishes to be served with various meats:

TABLE OF SAUCES AND RELISHES FOR VARIOUS MEATS

Roast beef—Currant jelly, quince jelly, tomato catsup, horseradish sauce.
Corned beef—Sliced fresh onions, prepared mustard, apple jelly.
Sweetbreads — Bechamel sauce onion sauce, water cress.
Roast veal — Mint jelly, tomato sauce, horseradish.
Roast lamb—Mint or cherry jelly, pickled onions, gherkins.
Roast mutton—Parsley sauce, stewed gooseberries, pickled peaches.
Boiled tongue—Olives, apple jelly, watercress, pickled beets.
Roast pork — Apple sauce, preserved ginger, deviled eggs.
Roast chicken—Crabapple jelly, celery salad, onion sauce, Pickles chopped.
Roast goose—Apple sauce or cider jelly, spiced pickled beans, pickled pears.
Roast duck—Apple salad, black currant jelly, watercress.
Roast turkey—Cranberry jelly, spiced peaches, chili sauce.
Baked fish—Egg sauce, drawn butter.

GILDED KISSES ❧ By Beatrice Burton

A Live Serial of Love and Temptation Right Here In Boston

Mary Rose nodded. "I wonder hat he's driving at now?" she ought

"Yes, I knew all about it and I d everything I could to stop it t the one thing I should have ne I didn't tell my mother about she said harshly. "I thought at Flossie was clever enough to te care of herself But no girl s iart enough to take care of her f when some man's after her' pecially when it's the man who lds her job in the palm of her nd! She has to be nice to him n or lose it!"

He shook his head "That isn't e, and you know it," he an red

Suddenly he stood up and walked ross the room toward the windows at faced the east. He went on alking to her, with his back turned toward her

"You say that Flossie wasn't able to take care of herself," he said "But she was. She knew just what she was doing all of the time and etter than anybody! She knew that I was losing my head, but she never lost hers. Not for a single second"

He swung around then, his hands in his pockets, and faced her

"You're a smart girl, Miss Middleton," he told her. "And if you'll look around this world of business, where men and girls meet each other every day, you'll notice something that it isn't always the girl who's the victim of the man. Sometimes the man is the victim of the girl—"

He nodded at her solemnly and Mary Rose saw in a flash that what she had taken for indifference was really grief. He was terribly upset about Flossie and her going away sat down heavily at his desk hing in his chair. "Where in levil do you think the darn girl's ?" he asked dully put out his hand and touched lectric button under the corner s desk. "Sam doesn't answer," id "Just look in the outer and see if he's down yet. ter nine"

y Rose went to the door and l around for Sam. But he not in sight s soon as he comes, I'd have in and ask him about Flossie er said to Mary Rose, as she ed the hall door to go out. "He ht to know something about her, nybody does ust as she was closing the door called her back. "Is Flossie g to marry my secretary?" he d with a sarcastic smile on his y face

I think so," Mary Rose answered tly, and he gave her a nod of issal Her last glimpse of him he hour fell to between them ed him sitting as he had been she went in staring moodily he wall opposite his great im ant looking desk

e office was almost empty when Rose went back to it. Miss ick was there alone bent over lesk, and apparently lost to the d it she straightened suddenly, as he had swallowed a poker, when heard what Mary Rose had to to her

Vell Min here's where you get job was what she said, and even to her own ears her voice sounded cheerful It would have an expert in expression to the heartbreak that was be nd it.

our job!" exploded Miss Min k her thin, grating soprano are you leaving"

Exactly that," Mary Rose swered calmly "I'm going to re n today Mr. Manners down

Just came in a minute ago." Miss answered, with a squeak of For years she had wanted Mary Rose Middleton's job.

Not only was it the best job in the office for a girl, but far down in her starved old maid's heart Miss Minnick had a sneaking affection for John Manners. She hated Doris Hing, and she hated Mary Rose Middleton. She hated anybody that John Manners seemed to care for

She Sees John

And there was no doubt that he had cared for Mary Rose for a while, at least. Miss Minnick wondered daily what had happened to nip that romance in the bud.

"Probably Mr Manners found out that she was running around with Mr. Dexter!" was Miss Minnick's final decision

Before she went into John Manners office, Mary Rose telephoned her mother to find out if there was any news of Flossie. But there wasn't

I'm getting tired of this waiting," Mrs. Middleton's voice came trembling over the wire. "For two pins I'd call up the police. What do I care if the news about her gets into the papers? I want to know where my girl is——" Her voice became thick with sobs.

"Mother—" began Mary Rose, but the loud sobs kept on

"Mother," she repeated "Listen to me! Don't do a thing until I get there. I'll be tied up here for about a half hour, and then I'll rush home. Now, you just sit down and wait for me. We'll talk it over calmly and decide what to do"

She hung up the receiver, and powdered her face in her little vanity mirror before she went into John's office. Even if he did hate her, she didn't like him to see her with black circles of weariness around her eyes.

"Good morning," he greeted her tersely, when she went and laid his letters on his desk

For the millionth time, I suppose she noticed how his dark hair swept back from his fine, high forehead and how firm the line of his lips was. "Even after I don't see him any more I shall be able to see him with my heart," she thought. But there was no flicker of either sorrow or resentment or anything else in her eyes She had learned to look at him as he looked at her—stonily And all of the time she was longing to put her arms around him and tell him how much she loved him and that she didn't care about life if she had to go away from him

She Tells John

Being a woman, and a woman in love she said the thing that was farthest from her thoughts: "I'm leaving Dexter & Co., Mr Manners

A thrill of keen joy swept through her at the look he gave her then For just an instant she saw, from his face, that what she had said had startled and dismayed him Then, like shades drawn over a window, the stony look of indifference came down over his face

"Very well, Miss Middleton," he answered "When do you leave?"

Her head hurt as if some one had held it very tight and squeezed it

"I suppose you'd like me to stay long enough to break some one else in to my job, wouldn't you?" she asked

'I would. But it isn't necessary

"I will, then," she faltered Now that she had made up her mind to leave the concern she hated the thought of going "I suppose you'll want Miss Minnick won't you?"

'Miss Minnick will do as well as any one." Nothing could have been more frozen than his voice

"I'll stay a week longer then—" Mary Rose began, when Miss Minnick herself put her red head in at the door

"Your mother on the phone, Miss Middleton," she said in her thin, high voice

Mary Rose picked up her telephone from her desk. "Yes, Mother?" she asked

Nothing but sobs answered her.

"Mother, I can't understand you." Mary Rose cried. "Please stop crying and talk to me, dear"

Then there came a click in her ear. Mrs. Middleton had hung up.

Mary Rose, her dreams shattered, goes home only to find a sinister telephone message in tomorrow's installment

FIFTEEN years is not very long when you think of the hundred we hope to live! It's just a whisk of time when you try to realize how old the cosmic scheme probably is It's a moment or two when we think of all we want to do before we set out for the country that lies beyond the "Great Adventure," all the books we long to get a look into all the beautiful pictures—and famous—we yearn to see, all the spots in the world we burn to go to!

But sometimes fifteen years is as aeon or two! Sometimes in that time some strange transformations in people and things can come about to bewilder a fellow. Oh, aye! See the wonders they can work in the attitude of that young gentleman! When the lovely point that the tale turns upon is a woman.

Once he pulled her flaxen curls until the tears sprang He tweaked her little furred cap off her head—dropped it in the mud perhaps.

Fifteen years pass

And now he wants to kiss her! And does! Pull her hair? He hair? Did he ever pull an angel's hair?

Once his joy was to make her cry.

Now he would die for a smile!

Time and Love congratulate each other

Best Aid to Beauty Is Fresh Air and Exercise, Says Jeritza

By Maria Jeritza

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

THE surest aids to beauty are close at hand We often pay out large sums of money for expensive lotions and creams while neglecting far more potent aids just because they are within our reach

Fresh air, water and sunlight are so invaluable to a woman's loveliness that it would be worth her while to pay fabulous prices for them, yet they are free

The next bright day dress yourself comfortably and go out and walk in the sunshine Walk block after block, or, if you can, mile after mile

You will return from this free beauty treatment refreshed and rejuvenated, with sparkling eyes and cheeks and lips that glow without need of rouge.

Does sunlight stream into your room? Then you are indeed blessed Get into your most comfortable negligee and stretch out on your chaise lounge drawn close to the window in the full sunlight. If you wish to do so, shade your eyes with a dark silk handkerchief Relax completely for half an hour dozing in this warm sunshine.

Follow the example of your cat, for a cat, with unfailing instinct for health and comfort, never misses a chance to take a nap in the sunshine

Sunlight has a peculiar mysterious quality which refreshes and soothes. In fact, physicians nowadays agree that sunlight has positive purifying power and tends to cleanse the body from all that is unwholesome

Every roof of every home, in every city, should be made into a sun parlor or sun garden. If we would spend more time in the sunshine we would be immeasurably more healthful and beautiful.

For myself I find sunlight the greatest rest and tonic imaginable I come back from my Summer vacation in my mountain home brown as an Indian. My hair is bleached by the sun many shades paler than its Winter hue. But these minor disadvantages are as nothing compared with the health, energy and vitality I have stored away ready for my strenuous Winter season, thanks to daily sun baths.

If you can do so, by all means run away for a few weeks toward the end of this Winter to some clime where you can bask in warm sunshine on warm sand and listen to the murmur of tropical waters. But if this is out of the question, find a sunny spot somewhere and try to sun yourself there every day.

If your own home doesn't afford sunlight, sit on a park bench in the sun and breathe deep of fresh air drenched in sunshine.

Don't be frightened away from sunshine by fear of early Spring freckles. If you are in the South, before you take your sunbath on the beach you will if you are wise rub pure cocoanut oil into every part of your body exposed to the sun's rays. This will prevent sunburn, tan and freckles, provided you apply it systematically before exposing yourself. It's still a little early in the northern climes to worry about freckles and tan, yet this is the time of year to start the campaign against them.

I advocate only the simplest remedies. I do not believe in drastic measures which remove freckles and skin together. If you protect your skin with powder—even the simplest bath powder—before going for a walk on windy, sunny days in February and March, you should escape any unpleasant results. To be doubly sure, just before you retire at night rub into your face a mixture of pure glycerine and lemon juice in equal parts. This should be freshly mixed

In Winter and Summer, Fall and Spring, regardless of sunburn and freckles you'll find there's no more efficacious beauty measure than spending hours each day in the sunshine.

"Get" Colds Quick! —Don't Wait For Chills

WHEN you feel a cold beginning, take hot lemonade. Then go straight to bed, under warm covers.

You'll perspire, but in nine cases out of ten the cold will go.

In the morning there won't be a trace.

Thus, over night, you'll save days of sickness and their cost together with the dangers of pneumonia, "flu" and other ills that often follow colds.

Millions profit in untold ways by this measure of prevention.

But they "get" the colds before the colds "get them."

If you are sneezing, if you ache, take hot lemonade tonight, and cheat the cold. It's the cheapest, simplest, surest, safest way.

Just squeeze the juice of a lemon in glass or cup of hot water. The effectiveness of hot lemonade is due to more than its heat. Add sugar if you wish.

Ask for California lemons, the tart, juicy, practically seedless kind. They make the most effective lemonade for colds.

Doctors Have Prescribed It For Over 33 Years

IF you feel the need of a good general tonic, it seems but natural to use a tonic which has been and is today being prescribed by thousands of doctors. Physicians for over 33 years have been prescribing Gude's Pepto-Mangan as a quick and efficient tonic. Its prompt tonic power has been abundantly demonstrated by hundreds of careful blood tests at the hands of experts. It is entirely different from the myriads of unscientific preparations and "tonics" which physicians know to be of little practical value.

Prescribe Gude's Pepto-Mangan for yourself TODAY and watch the results. Your druggist has it in both liquid and tablet form.

What Doctors Write:

"I have used Gude's Pepto-Mangan for several years and think it the best of its kind."

"I found its use very satisfactory and am prescribing it now right along."

"I have been using Gude's Pepto-Mangan in my practice for 10 years or more with the best results. I have found it the best form of iron I have ever used. The weakest or most irritable stomach bears it perfectly."

"Find Gude's Pepto-Mangan most excellent. Prescribe it almost exclusively."

There is only one Pepto-Mangan, that is Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

Happy Home Table

By H. L. Manning

THE father of the eight young Greshams had acquired a considerable amount of this world's goods and it suddenly dawned upon him that he might as well enjoy himself. So he took a trip, leaving his family at home in the unpretentious house in which they had always lived

When he returned he had a gift for each member of the family and a chest of silver.

"What on earth did you buy all this silver for?" asked his wife

"I bought it to use on our table every day," he replied. "I want you knives and forks on the table every meal, mother, whether we have company or not I never want them to be ashamed of their table manners as I have been frequently of hn Gresham," demanded "do you think that I am to use these spoons and knives and forks on the table every day? Why, they must have cost"

"That's all right, my dear, about the cost," interrupted Mr. Gresham "Aren't you paying out money to have Martha taught piano lessons?"

"Yes, but that's different."

"You are the one who suggested sending James to college, aren't you?"

"Stop asking foolish questions," snapped Mother Gresham

'I am just trying to show you that a properly set table is just as necessary

By that time the three older children chimed in. "Papa is dead right," declared James, while the two girls nodded vigorously

"All right, then, have it your own way," agreed their mother "But the girls will have to set the table. I won't be bothered with all this new-fangled foolishness."

So from that day the Gresham family began the study and practice of good table manners.

it would end. This hour I had thought about for weeks. I wasn't afraid exactly. I was thrilled.

Tony piloted the roadster with skill. Headlights loomed ahead and my heart seemed to stop. Tony swung along. Tony showed his nerve every foot of the way. The car passed us, without incident. I kept consulting the chronometer.

Three miles—four miles—and then I noticed Tony slow up a bit and proceed with greater caution, as if feeling his way. We came to a curve which the Prowler had told us was just ahead of the "sore spot," but luck was with us. The road was clear.

"And at that," said Tony, "it isn't so much luck as it appears. You know even patrols steal a nap now and then and the Prowler tipped me about when the shift on this home stretch take it easy. You never can tell when one of those motorcycle demons will breeze along but border patrols are a lot like policemen used to be before they had to pull in their boxes hourly—they like to leave the base for a spell.

Runs the Gauntlet

After a while Tony's expression became less tense and I was conscious of a feeling of relaxation. As day broke the country with the new beauties of Spring rested me and [illegible] new courage.

We had run the gauntlet. We were now leisurely motoring homeward. I had my first contraband safely tucked in behind. It wouldn't bring a large sum but it was a start.

I dropped Tony where I had met him and motored to West Halifax. I felt sheepish when I faced my husband and I didn't tell him what I had done. I wanted to dispose of the load and complete the transaction.

I had agreed to pay Tony for his trouble when I got my pay. I saw that the rear deck was kept locked and my next move was to sell it. Through Tony I knew where to go.

I know what women will want to know. They'll wonder about the attitude of Tony and the other men I met. So far as my experience that night was concerned, they were all gentlemen. Tony and Pop knew why I had taken up bootlegging. They knew I was a married woman who loved her husband. They knew I wasn't in the game for any skylarking.

Hilda Protected

And they respected me accordingly. Many a cultured gentleman might well take pattern from men like Tony, my guide, and the supply man. Never once was I insulted by so much as a word or glance.

And yet I had gone among outlaws. I realized that Tony might have guided me to much rougher places and that I might have been less at ease on our first night out.

Later as I travelled the highways alone or with Harry Murdock whom I engaged as a chauffeur, I was never greatly annoyed. Bootleggers and night hawks kept respectful distance. If some man under the influence of liquor chanced to make a fresh remark he was quickly put in his place.

It was the old story of a woman receiving the treatment that she courts. Strange men were inclined at times to josh me, but they soon discovered that I was in grim earnest, a married woman conducting her operations on a business basis and with nothing in common with them.

Harry Murdock, who is a prisoner in this very jail, having been captured with me, acted as an employe to an employer. Murdock, big and manly and courageous, knew my husband and knew why I was in the game and he respected me as he would his own wife or sister.

I never saw his equal at the wheel. But I did not hire him until some time later.

In my next chapter I will tell how I disposed of my first load of ale and of my first meeting with the Boston man who acted as order man and buyer for the "big bugs" in Greater Boston.

DAILY SHORT STORY

GRANDMA HALWORTHY, FOR THE DEFENDANT

By Louise P. Armstrong

THE bank examiners, in their semi-annual audit of the First National Bank, discovered a shortage of three thousand dollars. This was duly reported to old Mr. Stanley Stewart, president of that institution, who caused a thorough investigation to be made, the result of which fastened the guilt upon young Minor Wesley, first teller, a youth of somewhat gay temperament and sporting propensities.

Wesley's mother was crushed at the accusation of her son, and suffering from the severe nervous shock of it, took to her bed on the day he was bailed for appearance in court to answer the formal charge against him.

There was a hush, like the hush of death, upon the modest cottage of the Wesleys when Grandma Holworthy, public-spirited woman of the town and friend of the afflicted, tapped at the door about eleven o'clock and was admitted by the frightened little negro maid-of-all-work.

Offers Help

"I hear that your mistress is ill, Delia," said Grandma Holworthy in kindly tones.

"Yes'm, she ain't et none, and the doctor, he bin and gone!" confirmed Delia, showing the whites of her eyes and shaking her kinky head in a doleful manner.

Grandma Holworthy entered and took off her wraps, hanging them upon the rack in the narrow hallway. "I'll see what I can do," she observed in a briskly cheerful tone.

She found young Wesley sitting by the window in his mother's room, his hands clasped helplessly across his knees. He turned to greet her, dumb misery in his big brown eyes, and a droop to his lips which sat strangely on the handsome boyish face. Grandma smiled and held out her hand to him.

"I've come to see what I can do for you and your mother, Wes," she said.

"That is good of you, Ma'am," replied the boy. "But I guess nobody can do anything for me."

"We'll see about that, young man," Grandma told him gravely.

Tom Winston, Grandma Holworthy's beloved grandson-in-law, sat late in his office that night, ruffling his thick, dark hair as he studied the papers which cluttered the big desk, his brows drawn in a straight line of perplexed concentration. He did not hear the softly opened door, nor see his little relative by marriage until she had seated herself upon the edge of the great chair opposite and coughed in an apologetic manner.

"Why, Grandma!" exclaimed Tom, springing up to kiss her dutifully, and clasp her little hands in his. "The firm is indeed honored! Or has something awful happened at home?"

On Business

"I came on business, Tom," the little lady told him. "I need the advice and services of an attorney."

"Has someone sued you for malicious slander, young lady? I always have told you girls your tongues would get you in trouble sooner or—"

"I'm not joking, Tom," Grandma interrupted him, a serious expression in her round, wrinkled little face. "Did I hear you say this morning at breakfast that you had been asked by the officials of the First National to represent them in this case about the shortage?"

"Why, yes!" Tom's face lighted up somewhat proudly. "That'll be a big thing for the firm, Grandma! I must say I am gratified that they should have picked us. We're rather young, you know—just about cutting our eye teeth, so to speak!"

"Well, you mustn't take that case, Tom!" she cut in on him with emphasis.

"And why not, ma'am?" asked her grandson in surprise. "It's the best thing we've had yet—better even than that Seward case—more publicity! Couldn't afford to throw down such business."

"You mustn't touch it, Tom!" the little lady repeated.

"Mustn't?"

"You're going to defend young Wesley, Tom—clear that boy! He didn't steal!"

To Prove Him Guilty

Tom smiled. "Maybe not, Grandma! You don't understand the game! A man is innocent in the eyes of the law until he's proven guilty. He'll have every chance to defend himself, Ma'am—but that'll be my job, proving him guilty!"

"The game!" repeated Grandma Holworthy, a queer note creeping into her voice, and she stared at her son-in-law with round, china-blue eyes, until Tom dropped his own, and flushed in embarrassment.

"You don't understand!" he reiterated.

"No," she said, rising abruptly. "I had thought the practice of law a noble profession—and perhaps it is, Tom! I'm not belittling the game! Goodbye!" And ignoring his outstretched hands, she turned and started to the door.

"Where are you going, dear?" entreated Tom.

"To find a legal advisor—the sort with old-fashioned scruples!" she told him. "If such there be in the town!" she added.

He sprang up and strode across the room, taking her firmly by the shoulders. "How absolutely uncompromising you are!" he exclaimed.

"'One does not compromise with Justice!'" said Grandma Holworthy.

"Sit down, please, Grandma, and tell me what the young fool said," commanded Tom, "and I'll give my word if there is an atom of foundation for your convictions, I'll defend him—and fight that bank crowd, tooth and nail!"

Clasped His Hand

On the day Minor Wesley was cleared of the charge against him, testimony offered by his counsel having fastened the guilt without doubt upon an official of the bank—a man hitherto highly regarded and above reproach—on that bewildering day, when the crowd in the court-room had scarce recovered from the surprise of it all and gotten back its breath, Judge Evans picked his way through the mob to clasp the ha of counsel for the defendant.

"That was a wonderful fight, my boy!" he said heartily. "And you made a good move when you decided to stand for Wesley. I heard that the bank crowd had approached you! I must certainly say I was fooled—the man had fastened it unquestionably on that kid!"

"So I thought too, at first, sir," agreed Tom.

"I'm proud to see you youngsters looking so closely into the ethics of a case," continued the old man. "Justice cannot suffer in your hands—you are to be commended as barrister of honest scruple."

Shook His Head

Tom smiled wryly, and shook his dark head. "You of course know Madam Holworthy, my grandmother?" he asked the judge.

"I have that honor," the old man replied with a courtly bow.

"Well, how could one help having scruples," asked grandma's grandson-in-law with emphasis, "when grandma takes a stand for Justice?"

And the Judge looked at [illegible] in bewilderment as he turned and strode off through the crowd.

FOXY GRANDPA AND HIS INTERESTING DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

THE luncheon party really wasn't for me. It was for Bobby and Elizabeth, his little friend. The captain of the big battleship said he was giving it for them and that he would like me to bring them.

So one beautiful day in the Autumn we went over to the landing at Ninety-Sixth street and the North River—you know they call the Hudson River the North River when it gets down as far as New York—and there was the captain's gig all spick and span. We went aboard and it seemed as if we flew out into the middle of the river where the big battleship Arizona lay.

Luncheon finished, the captain sent for a sailor and told him to show the children over the ship. They were gone quite a while and when they returned, out of breath from climbing ladders and squeezing through turrets, Elizabeth said it was very nice to go to places which the ordinary visitor couldn't go because you were the captain's guest.

"And there's a fine monkey on board, too," exclaimed Bobby.

It was time for us to go now and the captain put on his cap to take us to the gangway. Just as we were passing a group of sailors, the captain's face grew very stern, for at that moment we saw a bluejacket give the monkey a cuff on the side of the head and the little fellow went spinning across the deck.

"Pardon me a moment," said the captain and over he went to the sailors.

Every one looked scared and oh, how cross the captain did look. Bobby, Bunny and I didn't know what would happen. "I wonder if he'll put him in the brig?" whispered Bobby.

Just then all the sailors began smiling and you know sailors don't do that when the captain is talking to them. Their faces got read and one of them had to put his hand over his mouth to keep from laughing right out loud.

The captain looked up and then he laughed right out loud and threw up his hands, as if to say:

"What's the use?"

Then everybody laughed. Because what do you think happened? Right there while the captain was giving a lecture on cruelty to animals that very same little monkey climbed up behind him, took his tobacco pouch out of his pocket, opened it, climbed up above his captain's head and sprinkled the tobacco all over his cap and down it came like a shower over the gold vizor of his cap and covered the gold stripes on his sleeves.

"They're impossible," murmured Bunny, as we got into the gig, "they don't even respect rank."

Vapors stop Colds

VAPORS reach a cold directly because they are breathed right into the air passages and lungs. It is for this reason that Vicks VapoRub brings such quick relief. When rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime:—

It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled, while you sleep, right to the affected parts, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.

At the same time it acts through the skin (like a poultice or plaster) "drawing out" the pain and soreness.

Most colds yield by morning to this double action of Vicks.

COPPER TARIFF TO AID HOME INDUSTRY

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

When the writer first suggested a tariff on copper as a means to aid this home industry, although Boston was and still is the world's primary copper market, only a little support of the idea was immediately forthcoming, but there has since been a general swinging into line. The copper tariff bill put before the U. S. Senate by Senator Ralph Cameron provides for a duty of 4 cents a pound on all foreign produced copper entering the United States.

Senator Cameron.
Copyright by [illegible]

The Arizona Senator's bill is similar to the measure introduced in the House by the writer's friend, Congressman W. Frank James of Michigan, regarding which we have previously written. Senator Cameron was born in Southport, Me., and was in early life a fisherman, hauling up from the briny deep the Sacred Cod that has long been the emblem of the Bay State and which originally did much to attract the attention of English colonists to Pemaquid (Maine).

* * *

He struck the West like Bill Hart of film fame. He was in turn dry goods clerk, sheepherder and sheriff in a Western county, where gun play was frequent. He spent a dozen years at the hazardous task of building the trail into the Grand Canyon of Colorado, a big engineering feat.

The Cameron bill would amend the tariff act of 1922 by placing a tax on copper in any form, whether in ores, concentrates or alloys, providing it is actually recovered; on old copper and new copper. The Cameron bill has been referred to the Senate Committee on Finance, and it is expected it will receive attention at this session of Congress. Producers of the Michigan district are strongly in favor of copper tariff legislation, believing it will equalize cost of production and provide a more substantial market for American mines. The proposed levy has been indorsed by Calumet & Hecla Consolidated, Copper Range and Quincy mining companies.

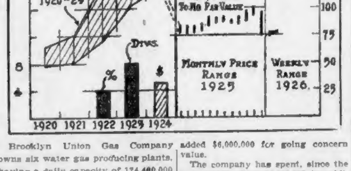
I hear that an advance of one cent a gallon in retail price of gasoline is soon to be announced in New England and Atlantic seaboard States, as result of advances in price of crude oil.



Brooklyn Union Gas Company owns six water gas producing plants, having a daily capacity of 124,400,000 cubic feet, and 27 gas holders with a total capacity of 35,957,000 cubic feet; also nine relief holders of 2,147,000 cubic feet capacity. Fifteen distributing stations serve a densely populated and rapidly developing section of Greater New York.

For the ten-year period covering 1915 to 1924, average annual net profits amounted to $509,422. The net income for 1924, somewhat above the average, was $666,706.

These figures take into account outcome of litigation concerning gas rates which was decided in favor of the company; the court allowed a valuation of $58,092,518 as of December 31, 1922, to which was to be added $6,000,000 for going concern value.

The company has spent, since the end of 1922, about $6,000,000 for additions and extensions, so that the property represents an actual investment of something over $64,000,000 in actual cost not including good will or going concern value.

It was also found that the company was entitled to a return of 8 per cent. On December 18, 1923, stockholders voted to change authorized capital from 300,000 shares of $100 par value to 600,000 shares of no par value.

The change became effective on the listing of the stock on February 18, 1924. On the old $100 par value stock dividends were paid in every calendar year except 1907, 1920 and 1921. The present rate of dividend is $4 a year.

Winter in Europe's New Tropical Playground ... North Africa

Luxurious New Transatlantique Hotel Just Opened at Biskra ... in a Mohammedan Paradise Only Nine Days from New York

IT is in the land of the Moslem ... unchanged for centuries ... sweeping the traveler back to ancient times, and rest, and comfort! For the French Line has established a luxurious motor service and 31 famous Transatlantique hotels along thousands of miles of macadam highway. And the emerald oases of the desert are penetrated in a twin-six wheeled Renault car that rides the dunes like an ocean liner.

Thirteen day itinerary, including the delightful trip across the Mediterranean, luxurious hotel and motor bus accommodations as well as necessary gratuities for .. $120

De Luxe trip of fifty-seven days with all expenses, including the trip across the Mediterranean and that of a private car, for $1450

Imagination cannot picture the Oriental subtlety and exotic color of this country that lies at "the other end of the longest gangplank in the world." One must see it! Take a de luxe French Liner, the Paris or France, that goes to Plymouth, England ... then Havre, the port of Paris. Or a One-Class Cabin Liner, the De Grasse, Rochambeau, La Savoie or Suffren, that goes direct to Havre.

Season from September to May

It's the ideal way. Perfect accommodations, cuisine, and companionship for the days at sea. No transferring to tenders at Havre. Just down the gangplank to a special boat train waiting. Paris in three hours; the Riviera over night, and North Africa just a day across the Mediterranean.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Railway workers all over the country want more pay. This will not astonish readers of this column.

Nothing is ever settled until it is settled right. The working conditions of certain classes of American railway workers are not right.

If their hours are not right, workers will never permanently regard their wages as right. Men dissatisfied with their working conditions cannot be satisfied by their pay envelope.

Hundreds of letters received from railway employes during the last year prove beyond doubt that bitter discontent exists over the seven-day work-week every week of the year. Not only are men feeling bitter, but letters reveal that many wives are also leading most unhappy lives because their husbands have no proper opportunity for rational home life with their children.

One worker who describes himself as "a yardmaster, stolid and stunned, a brother to the ox," writes a long letter, just received, which contains these sentences:

"There may be isolated cases where men may object to having their hours reduced and Sunday work cut out on account their wages are so low that they cannot take care of their dependents, but you may rest assured they are not on the railroads, any statement to the contrary notwithstanding.

"I am a yardmaster on the railroad and am working seven days a week and 12 hours per day, except that I get two Sundays off each month, which is compulsory, otherwise I would not get it. And when I do get it, what good does it do me?

"I am so tired after working about 13 hours that I have to go to bed to get enough rest to keep me alive, and when I get up again the day is gone and I can do nothing but get something to eat and go to bed again, and when I get up the next morning, the children have gone to school and when they come home in the evening I am going to work again, so that my night off is of no benefit to my family and nothing to me except a few extra hours' rest and sleep."

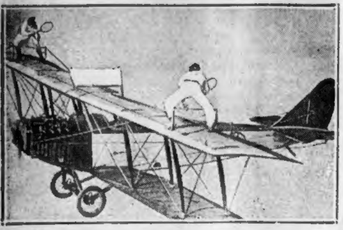
What Is Nerve?

And What Is Courage? Nobody Can Answer



Playing tennis on an airplane. Is THIS nerve and courage?

This game of tennis was played on the upper wing of a biplane, 3,000 feet above the city of Los Angeles.

Miss Gladys Roy, with her back to you, is returning "a fast one" to Ivan Unger.

It was probably not much of a tennis game, the net is rather low, but at least these two human beings did stand on top of the airplane, as it rushed along 3,000 feet up in the air, and they did play tennis.

Whether their feet were held down by straps or not we can't say.

But merely looking at them is enough to give the shivers to an ordinary human being. Everybody will say offhand that this represents about the "topnotch of COURAGE and nerve."

What do you think about it?

Which is greater, in the absence of fear, the kind of courage that a bulldog has when it jumps at the throat of a lion or the mental quality that enables you TO OVERCOME FEAR that almost overpowers you?

The young mother, afraid of a mouse, will without hesitation dash into a blazing building to save her child and lose her life.

You know the story of the young soldier in his first battle. He was white, trembling. Somebody said to him afterwards, "You were terribly frightened." "Yes I was," replied the young man, "and if YOU had been as much frightened as I was you would have run away."

Is courage doing things because you are NOT AFRAID, or is it doing things in spite of the fact that you ARE afraid?

Is nerve standing on the upper wing of a biplane and playing tennis 3,000 feet up in the air, because you are NOT nervous?

Or is it real nerve shown by going into the operating room and undergoing an operation in which it is not possible to use anaesthetics, because you have THE WILL to conquer your fear?

Courage and nerve after all mean not the conquest of OTHERS, but the conquest of YOURSELF.

Almost anybody will show courage with ten thousand looking on. The rare man or women shows courage when NOBODY is looking on.

You know the story of Crillon, who lived in the time of Henry the Fourth, and is called the bravest of all Frenchmen.

A young prince, put in charge of Crillon, thought it would be a good joke to test Crillon's courage. So at 3 o'clock in the morning, when Crillon was in bed and asleep, the prince and his companions dashed into his bedroom, affecting great fear, said the castle had been taken and they were all to be massacred, crying, "What shall we do?"

Crillon, getting up, calmly said, "What is there to DO? Why, follow me and die fighting."

Seizing a dagger, he rushed out to meet the imaginary enemies—they were not there.

Afterwards, with a look that was unpleasant, he said to the young prince, "It is lucky for YOU that I did not show fear. Had I done so I should have stabbed you."

There are all kinds of courage. Perhaps a fair definition would be: "REAL NERVE AND COURAGE CONSIST IN DOING YOUR DUTY, WHATEVER IT MAY COST YOU."

And often the greater the FEAR the greater the COURAGE, and the greater the nervousness the greater the nerve.

Pockets Must Be Hit to Awaken Bay State Towns

Nothing short of a calamity seems to arouse the average citizen to the realization that proper administration of the finances of his community is as vital to him as correct accounting of his own bankbook.

A record-breaking tax rate awakened him in Revere. He is now paying for his complacent faith in the "good fellows" he has preferred to protect his interests.

It apparently required the tragic disclosure of the Clinton treasury shortage to bestir Gardner to take action on her failure to audit accounts since 1919. It is to be hoped that Gardner tempers its call upon the State accounting division for an auditing with a due sense of shame for the officials who are responsible.

Seventy-five other cities and towns of the State have been more lax than Gardner. Their accounts have never been audited, according to the accounting division. That more of our towns have not gone on the financial rocks speaks highly for the ability and integrity of their financiers.

'LUNA' THE FRIEND OF EVERY WOMAN'

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

"The young lady whose imagination often gets the best of her reasoning powers tells me that the moon affects the growth of women's hair. Will you kindly let me know whether this is correct?—Virginia P."

WELL, Virginia, if the moon does not act as perruquier for the ladies, she is a very ungrateful goddess, and ought to be shut out of the Olympian circle.

Such conduct, or lack of conduct, on her part would be exactly contrary to the principles and practice of Father Jupiter, who was always ready to assume any guise whatsoever, however humble it might be, to make himself agreeable to the fair here below.

For want of scientific information on the subject—since there is none—I will recall some of the things that your sex countenanced, perhaps, by mine, has put into mythology and folklore about the moon, whom one poet has named: "Luna, every woman's friend."

Moon Cakes

Did you ever hear of "Moon Cakes"? They seem to have been an invention of the women with little feet. In China the female principle is reputed to be represented in celestian things by the moon, called "the Queen of Heaven," besides which they imagine the moon to be inhabited by beautiful women.

It is in honor of these, perhaps, that the moon cakes are made and handed around as presents to be eaten at an Autumn festival to the full moon. This same custom of offering cakes to "the Queen of Heaven" is said once to have existed in parts of England, though presumably not of Chinese origin there.

It is no doubt from English sources that we derive the majority of our superstitions about the moon. How deep is the root that they have taken there may be judged from a story cited by the Rev. Timothy Harley.

A little sweep-girl picked up in the street near Brighton and admitted to a "Village Home," was found to have no reverence for anything except the moon. "On one occasion when the children were going to evening service and a beautiful moon was shining, one of them pointed to it, exclaiming: 'Oh, look at the beautiful moon!' Little Mary caught hold of her hand and cried: 'Yer mustn't point at the blessed moon like that! And yer musn't talk about it!'"

The Rev. Mr. Harley doesn't agree with Dr. Barnardo, the teller of the story, who thought that it was "from constantly sleeping under hedges and in barns, and waking up and seing that bright, calm eye looking at her that some sense of a mysterious presence had come upon the child."

But I suspect the doctor was not far wrong, although Rev. Mr. Harley's suggestion that the little girl had heard the tradition, common in that part of England, that it is a sin to point at the moon, is also probably well founded.

Diana, to credit the ancient statuaries, must have been a most skilful hair dresser for herself, and curiously enough, if you will take your opera-glass and look at the white profile of a beautiful woman which appears on the western half of the lunar "seas" have been made to take the form of a wonderful headdress.

Some Good Ones

Here is a chaplet of moon saws, as good as anything in astrology:

Start building your house, and move into it, at new moon; "pop the question," and get married at new moon; cut hair and nails at new moon; count your money at new moon to make it grow; never put on a new dress in the waning moon, gather herbs and fill your bottle with dew for the complexion at new moon; it is unlucky not to have a silver coin in your pocket the first time you glimpse the new moon; beware of seeing the new moon over your left shoulder, or through glass. But:

"Sow peases and beanses in the wane of the moon,
Who soweth them sooner he soweth
too soon,
That they with the planet may rest
and arise,
And flourish with bearing most plentifulwise."

"You Said It, Marceline!"

ON "UNSOUND INVESTING."

A girl IN LOVE invariably INVESTS her fiance
With splendid qualities
Of love, devotion,
Courage, fidelity, honesty
Of purpose, and any
Other valuable ASSETS
That she can think of.
She declares she SEES
Them in his EYES,
She HEARS them in
His VOICE, she RECEIVES
The PROOF of them at
His hands.
Baffled AT FIRST by
This glorious VISION in Himself, he, male-like,
FINALLY accepts it.
This is the BEGINNING
Of his end.
For the lady who INVESTED him with QUALITIES now demands
THE INTEREST,
And neither realize that
The reason WHY some Husbands FAIL
To DELIVER the matrominial
Goods IS that they Never had them.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Elsie Robinson

"ELSIE, aren't there more crazy people than there ever were before?" writes Amy. "It seems to me that I hear every day of some one that has become queer, if not actually dangerous. Why, right in my own set there are two women who think every one is persecuting them and a man who has become a religious maniac.

"My mother says she can't remember anything like this when she was young. There were always one or two queer people in every village, but they had usually been that way from the time they were born. But nowadays people are perfectly sane one week and raving the next. Have you noticed it?. Why is it?"

Yes, I have noticed it. Any one who receives hundreds of letters each week, and interviews scores of people, can hardly escape noticing it. Every mail contains one or more letters from obviously insane people.

Why is it? Why are so many losing their hold on healthy, sane living? They are losing their hold because healthy, sane living has become too strenuous an occupation. Minds which could have coped with life in 1826 cannot cope with life in 1926.

One must do so much more in 1926. One must know so much, risk so much, speed up so much. Nor does the pressure arise only from the individual career; from every side comes pressure and stimulation. The rush of big crowds through which we must fight our way. The furious stream of automobiles which we must dodge. The everlasting ringing of telephones, blowing of horns, pounding of street cars, shuffle of feet, clatter of riveting machines. The ceaselessss, bewildering impact of light and color upon our eyes.

Those of us who can insulate ourselves against these contacts, or who have greater prowess or endurance, hold on. But increasing numbers of weaker or less adaptable people are dropping off.

What is the answer. Science alone can answer the question for those who have drifted away. But for us who are still in the thick of it there are still ways to fend against the danger.

Live as simply as possible. Elliminate from your program all unnecessary contact with people, spectacles or business. Don't eat too much. Don't struggle too much. Don't worry. Be as much of a vegetable as you can. Being a man is dangerous business, most of us aren't ready for it yet. Go slow!

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

LOVE begins with the cocktail of hope and ends with the black coffee of remorse—but if all that comes between has been sweet and wholesome and glorified, nobody cavils at the bill.

Helen Rowland

An optimist is a girl who insists on having a kiss-proof lipstick before she will go to a party.

When a man exclaims, "Where have you been all my life?" almost any girl could truthfully answer, "Waiting for you to get through playing, dear heart!"

For every bigamist, there is somewhere a slacker-bachelor dodging his share of domestic responsibilities; and nine women out of twelve, on a jury, would vote to punish the bachelor. The only woman who really wants to see a "kind" bigamist punished is the one who is tired of him.

Affection is becoming such a casual thing, that, pretty soon, we shall probably be greeting the iceman with a kiss and the laundryman with "Hello, darling!"

The two most popular classes of husbands, these days, appear to be those whom women shoot because they love them, and those whom women shoot because they don't love them.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

CALISTHENICS are losing their popularity in the American home. The average husband gets all the exercise he wants chasing his collar buttons in the morning.

AFTER he's been back of the bureau and under the bed a couple of times, he's had plenty of physical culture.

STEAM baths are all right, but a little shirt stud can make you perspire twice as much.

ONE man has had his head under the chiffonier so often that he's got bunions on his neck.

HE wears corn plasters instead of collars.

IT won't be long until he'll be able to fasten his shirt on to the callouses.

ONE fellow always dips his cuff buttons in molasses before he starts putting them in his shirt.

THE syrup sticks to the carpet and keeps them from rolling.

THIS acts the same as four-wheel brakes.

ANOTHER guy went to a kennel and bought himself a pedigreed button hound.

THESE dogs are trained to follow shirt studs. In fact, they're raised under bureaus.

ENORMOUS INCREASE IN USE OF TOBACCO

By DR. FRANK CRANE

FEW people realize the growth of the tobacco business. When Columbus discovered America over four centuries ago he found the natives in some places using the dried leaves of a plant which at that time was utterly unknown to the civilized world. Since that time the growth of the tobacco industry has been enormous.

Byron in his day spoke of

"Divine tobacco which from east to west
Cheers the tar's labor and the Turkman's rest."

Tobacco is the biggest revenue producer in the United States, with the possible exception of the income tax. It pays annually into the Treasury about $350,000,000.

America grows more tobacco and manufactures, exports and consumes more tobacco than any other country in the world.

The marvel of the tobacco business is the growth of cigarette consumption.

Cigarettes have always been the main butt of the reformers. The public was impressed by the allegations that cigarette smoking causes nervousness. Many other evils were attributed to cigarette smoking. As a matter of fact, however, cigarettes are about the least harmful method of consuming tobacco. When there is added to this fact that of cheapness we have the reason for the great increase in cigarette smoking.

There are three kinds of cigarettes—those called Turkish, which are made entirely of Oriental tobacco, those called Blended, which are composed of American tobacco mixed with the eastern, and the others which are composed entirely of Virginian tobacco or tobacco of some other character.

There is no tobacco grown in Egypt and there has not been for many years. So-called Egyptian cigarettes are made from the tobacco of Turkey, the Balkans and Greece.

The cigarette machine manufactures automatically hundreds of cigarettes, where the hand worker could manufacture but one.

The two factors accountable for the remarkable increase in cigarette smoking are the steadily increasing demand, and the machines which manufacture four hundred cigarettes a minute.

The wrapper of a cigar constitutes not more than one-tenth of the cigar and the color of it is absolutely no indication of its strength.

The tobacco used for cigars comes from Cuba, Porto Rico, the islands of Sumatra and Java, and some from the United States. Most cigars from Havana are made by hand, while the United States produces the most machine-made cigars.

Whatever one may think of the advantages or disadvantages of using tobacco, there is no question as to the enormous increase of the use of this luxury.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

FOR the stings and the smarts of the struggle, for the myriad threats of the road, for the scorn of the gods as they juggle with our souls while they laugh at our load, we must fashion a shield to defend us from the forces that sap us of cheer, we must search out a buckler to lend us its aid in our wanderings here. So we turn to our work that can thrill us as we struggle to build it aright, to our work that can bless us and fill us with a sense of creation's delight. And we search after love that can light us when the shadows fall, dark, round our feet; after love till no fears can affright us; after love, that makes all of life sweet.
